Gallivan Wires That Commission Will Report Bill Next Week

The American received the following telegram from Congressman Gallivan today:

"Glad to advise that the persistent and unremitting drive at members of the Postal Commission considering readjustment of salaries of postal employes will probably bear fruit early next week. Latest developments are that the commission will present a bill to the House on Tuesday or Wednesday, even though report of commission, as I have hitherto advised you, is not complete and will not be completed. Of course, it is never safe to predict what this legislative body will do, but the commission can present a bill for consideration without any report accompanying it."

Senator Lodge pledged himself to the American to do all he could in the Senate to hasten action on the postal employes' request for increased wages.

Senator Lodge said that the congressional committee handling the postal employes' request is expected to report in a few days.

TAGUE IS HOPEFUL.

Like all the other New England Senators and Congressmen, Senator Lodge has expressed himself as in hearty accord with the American and other Hearst papers' campaign to expedite legislation giving living wages to postal workers.

Congressman Peter F. Tague of Charlestown, a member of the House Committee on postoffices and post roads, also expressed the belief, that adjustments would be made before the adjournment of Congress.

He said that he has always advocated better conditions for employes of the postal service, which he likened to the greatest servant of American business, but which was in danger of demoralization.

British Call General Pershing 'Sir John'

The position taken by Englishmen in the controversy waged some months ago before General Pershing left England, is indicated by "Who's Who," the official biography published in London, which describes General Pershing as follows:

"PERSHING, General Sir John Joseph, G. C. B."

The "G. C. B." indicates that the leader of the American Expeditionary Forces is a Knight of the Grand Cross of the Bath.

In this country, however, Pershing is just plain "General John J. Pershing," and the "Sir," the English prefix to his name, is an unknown quantity.

AMERICAN WINS IN RENT FIGHT

Three Measures to Protect Tenants Are Signed by Governor Coolidge

The Boston American's three months' fight for remedial legislation to stop rent profiteering and protect tenants and fair landlords was crowned with success when Governor Coolidge signed three of the five rent bills sponsored by the Boston American Tenants' League.

By immediate action, these bills are now law.

Originally included in the Hayes rent bill introduced by Representative Martin Hays of Brighton, father of the rent legislation, these five measures were the result of long-drawn compromise by the Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature.

Another measure urged on Governor Coolidge by the American, the bill continuing the Commission on the Necessaries of Life with important amendments bearing on the rent question, promises to become law the first of next week.

The three bills signed by the Governor are:

1—A bill continuing the life until February, 1922, of the law requiring landlords to give thirty days' notice to quit to tenants at will.

2—A bill enabling cities and towns to purchase or take by eminent domain property to house their in-

QUERY GIRL IN BARNEY FLIGHT

Inspectors Seek Information From Former Sweetheart of Escaped Convict

A Cambridge girl has been gathered up in the police net spread out wider than ever on the fourth day of the escape of Barney, Manster and Ward from Charlestown State Prison. The girl, whose identity is withheld, went on the police grill today and was subjected to a searching cross-examination by Boston police inspectors.

For nearly a year the girl, who is young, employed regularly by a Cambridge firm and bears an excellent reputation, was wooed by Barney. Her friends knew of his devotion.

SEEK WARD IN SOUTH END.

Barney was frequently in her company and gave her presents, which she displayed with pride, and which are usually symbolical of an engagement. Then came his affair with another woman, despite which she is said to have maintained her affection

Bernhardt's Tribute to U. S. Martyrs

Paris, May 29.—Sarah Bernhardt, the famous French actress, today sent the following Memorial Day message to the United States through the International News Service:

"They did not fully your noble sons—they went to sleep under the soil which covers Lafayette, well knowing that they will emerge from the glorious shadow. And when they do come forth they will be glorified by nations —nations that will bend their knees in homage in their honor, at this day of memorial, let us sing the Hosanna of Victory, of which they were the young, but valiant arms."

COUNTERFEIT GANG CAUGHT

Treasury Department Operatives Seize Man at Lowell and Five Others

By International News Service.

Washington, May 29.—Secret service operatives of the Treasury Department have rounded up a gang of counterfeiters who flooded Eastern cities, including Boston, with hundreds of $50 and $20 spurious banknotes.

Six arrests have been made and plants in three localities have been seized, the latest arrest being at Lowell, Mass., where George Hermans was captured with $12,000 in counterfeit notes in his possession.

Joseph Murphy, assistant chief of the secret service, said the men travelled in automobiles and presented a prosperous appearance.

W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service, with the aid of reports from cities in the East and maps showing automobile routes in the New England States, directed his forces from Washington.

Arrests were made in New York, Scranton, Pa., Bridgeport, Ct., and Lowell, Mass. The bulk of the counterfeit money was made in New York.

GOVERNOR ALLEN TO NOMINATE GEN. WOOD

Chicago, May 29.—Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, who himself is expected to be a candidate, will make the nominating speech for General Wood at the Republican national convention; it was announced today. Governor Allen will pay tribute to General Wood as a "son" of Kansas, despite the fact that the general is a New Englander. General Wood is a citizen of the State of Kansas by a special act of Legislature.

SHIFTS SUGAR BLAME TO EQUALIZATION BOARD

New York, May 29.—Armin W. Riley, head of the Federal "Flying Squadron" of profiteering agents, contradicted the statement of Herbert Hoover that the government is to blame for failure to buy the Cuban sugar crop last July. In a letter to Senator Capper of Kansas, Riley declares "the Sugar Equalization Board is itself partly responsible for the present sugar situation."

ACQUITTAL OF GIRL ASKED

Attorney for Defence Scores Dead Doctor in Final Plea for Prisoner

Springfield, May 29.—Urging the unwritten law that the daughter can kill a seducer from unscrupulous medical practitioners, Attorney William G. McKechnie pleaded today for the acquittal of Jennie Zimmerman, on trial for the murder of her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman.

How the young girl was given by the courts the care of a drunken father and an insane mother; how a patient at the Good Will Home, she first met the young physician; how their relations grew from those of a doctor and patient to those of innocent friendship and later into those which brought about the murder were dwelt upon with eloquence by the attorney for the defense.

Attorney McKeenie said: "When Jennie paid that visit to the doctor's office for an examination there was a change in this relationship. When that doctor ordered the girl to take off her clothes he had in his mind to do what he finally did. When he gave her something to drink he had this crime in his mind. He violated the sacred relationship between doctor and patient, the relationship that is taught in the medical schools as part of the ethics of the profession.

"That doctor committed one of the most horrible crimes known to nature. This crime is punishable by death in most States and by imprisonment for

TWO WIDOWS CLAIM C. M. BAKER'S ESTATE

New York, May 29.—Two widows are claiming the estate of Charles M. Baker, a partner in the American Burlesque Association, owning several burlesque and vaudeville companies. Mrs. Bertha Baker, formerly a chorus girl, who married Baker in 1913 in Boston, applied to Surrogate Foley to revoke the letters of administration issued to Mrs. Augusta Baker, who married Mr. Baker in 1893. Mr. Baker was killed in an automobile accident. It is alleged in behalf of the second Mrs. Baker that Mr. Baker obtained a decree from his first wife in Chicago in 1911. The first Mrs. Baker asserts she knew nothing about the divorce.

Wood Expects Flaw to Set Him Free

William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, will use the technical claim that woolen cloth is not wearing apparel as his principal defence when he is arraigned on profiteering charges in New York next Tuesday.

Such a defence is foreshadowed in a telegram sent by Mr. Wood from his Andover estate to Assistant Attorney-General Francis P. Garvan, who is prosecuting him.

On the strength of it, he is confident of acquittal. He voiced this confidence in an address to employes who gave him a demonstration of loyalty in Andover, and expressed a desire to have the case as quickly as possible.

The wire to Prosecutor Garvan read:

"You claim woolen cloth is wearing apparel. I claim the contrary. Why, should we not co-operate in obtaining a prompt decision of the court as to which is right.

Government attorneys say that the indicted millionaire's wish will be gratified, as far as they are concerned. They intend to push the case, but expect a bitter and protracted defence.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB IS OPENED

Governor and Commanding General Head Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Parade

Thousands on Tremont and Boylston streets witnessed a short parade, headed by Governor Coolidge and Major-General Edwards. The parade marked the opening exercises in the dedication of the Army and Navy Club on Park square. Fifty sailors, fifty soldiers and twenty marines formed the escort.

The parade assembled at the State House and marched down Park street, to Tremont street, to Boylston and then to Park square. The parade disbanded at this point and the speakers and guests went to the stand erected in front of the structure.

Among the speakers were Governor Coolidge, Thomas W. Murray, representing Major Peters, General Edwards, General Beckman and Admiral Samuel S. Robinson. Major P. F. O'Keefe presided. The closing prayer was by Chaplain E. A. P. Jones, U. S. N.

After an address by Joseph Lee the key to the building was handed to Sergeant McCrory, accompanied by Sergeant Hayes and Chief Pharmacist's Mate Chase. Sergeant McCrory made a brief address, expressing his gratitude.

WAY PAVED FOR BONUS BILL

Filibuster Forces Adoption of Special Rule and House Takes Up Measure

Washington, May 29.—The proposed soldier bonus legislation was expected to be passed by the House today. Even the bill's bitterest opponents conceded its passage.

Republicans predicted success for the measure as a result of the weakening of the Democratic opposition and the winning of enough votes to overcome the "defiant 49" Republicans fighting the legislation "to the last ditch."

The special rule paving the way for consideration of the bonus bill, under a suspension of the rules, was immediately called up when the House convened and adopted. The bonus measure was then brought up for passage.

Persons Entering Bristol During Strike Trouble Must Show Passes

Bristol, R. I., May 29.—Plans to prevent the influx of thousands of curious persons into this town, now under martial law, during the holidays, were made today.

A conference was held by Governor Beckman, with Judge Frank H. Hamill and officials of the National India Rubber Company, at which it was decided that all visitors would be barred by State troops.

It was understood that all trains would be boarded outside of town, and all those having no legitimate business here would be prevented from entering.

Troops patrolled the streets today and no person was permitted to be about who could not show a military pass.

The quiet community, hitherto noted chiefly as the home of the yacht Nahma, Atlantic Cup defender, was turned into an armed camp as a result of strife

ELEVATED DEFENDANT IN $50,000 ACTION

A suit for $50,000 damages against the Boston Elevated Railway Company was filed in Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge by John J. Fay of Somerville, who claims he was struck by a car while walking on Broadway, Somerville, on February 16. The Elevated also is made defendant with the Elm Farm Milk Company in three suits of $5,000 each filed by Minnie Freedman of Cambridge, who alleges she sustained injuries through a collision between a car and a truck of the Elm Farm Company. Other suits include a $5,000 damage suit against James A. Montague of Lexington by Michael Hegarty of Cambridge for alleged injuries when struck by an automobile truck.

TAGUE TO DEMAND CONGRESS GIVE POSTAL MEN FAIR PLAY

SHOULD BE REWARDED FOR WORK WELL PERFORMED

The demoralization of the postal service, as a matter of fact, is only a question of months, unless immediate action is taken, according to Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Cambridge.

The attitude of Senator Lodge and Congressmen Tague and Dallinger is shown in the views of received from them by the American, which follows:

LODGE PROMISES AID.

HENRY CABOT LODGE, U. S. Senator from Massachusetts:

Am in favor of increased compensation for postal employes, but nothing can be done until the Congressional committee have submitted their recommendations.

They are now working on their report, which they hope to be able to submit to Congress in the next few days, and when the report comes in I shall be glad to do all that I can to expedite favorable action by the Senate.

PETER F. TAGUE, Congressman from Tenth Massachusetts District:

The question of reclassifying the salaries of the employes of the postal service is one in which every person in the United States should be interested. The postal service is closer to the people than any governmental activity and means as much, if not more, than any other service to the welfare of the nation.

When you look about and see the class of men and women who make up this great department of the government and realize that they are skilled workers, working for salaries much lower than those paid in other occupations requiring no training, you can readily understand why the postal service is becoming rapidly demoralized.

When the United States entered the war many of the best men in the country responded to the call to the colors, and scarcity of labor at home made increased compensation necessary in all lines.

Workmen, skilled and unskilled, were able to sell their labor at high rates, and many left their positions to accept others in the new war industries springing up all over the country. Not so the postal worker.

STUCK TO POSTS.

Since both the House and Senate leaders contemplate an adjournment or a recess on June 5, if the report of the reclassification commission is not ready in such time before that date to permit favorable action will be possible, temporary legislation must be put through to "hold over" the employes, or relief until permanent legislation can be passed.

I will confer with other members of Congress interested in the continued welfare of the service and of the postal employe, am in daily consultation with the House leaders of both parties, urging the absolute necessity of temporary relief legislation in case the reclassification commission report does not become available within the next few days. The time when further delay will become impossible is near at hand. Action on one of the two lines indicated must be passed at once.

Carriers Want Pay "Docking" Stopped

Springfield, May 28.—Three hundred delegates assembled here today for the annual convention of the state branch, National Association of Letter Carriers. Boston sent a delegation of fourteen.

Among the men of national prominence invited to attend the sessions of the body, which are to be held at the Hotel Kimball, are Senator George H. Moses, New Hampshire; Congressman Calvin Pare, Massachusetts; Secretary of State Langtry and others.

President Timothy B. McKeague of Haverhill, president of the State branch of the national organization, will preside as chairman. The vice-president is William H. Carney of Boston, and Maurice H. Powers of Lowell is secretary for Massachusetts.

HOPE TO REJOICE.

"If the committee appointed by Congress makes a report before the deliberations of the convention commence, it will be a convention of rejoicing, otherwise it will be a convention of anxious thought and consideration," stated John S. Foley, president of Branch 34, the Boston local, N. A. L. C.

The Boston delegation is headed by James F. Danehy, vice-president of the Boston branch, N. A. L. C. Other members of Boston's representation are: Jacob Berger, Sub-Central station; C. J. Foran, Back Bay station; Philip J. Gleason, Cambridge station; Daniel W. Kelleher, Chelsea station; Joseph M. Lynch, Dorchester Centre station; John W. McCann, Somerville station; James F. Murray, Upham's Corner station; Frank Norton, Station "A"; Charles E. Pope, Central station; Dominick H. Richards, Newton station; Charles J. Riordan, Brighton station; Edward P. Ryan, Jamaica Plain station, and John S. Wilson, Central station.

Many resolutions dealing with the present unparalleled situation of meagre pay and unendurable working conditions will be introduced by the Boston delegates, who will also offer special resolutions thanking the Boston American and the Literary Digest for their assistance in forwarding the cause of better treatment for postal employes.

SEND THANKS TO HEARST.

A resolution of thanks was sent yesterday to William Randolph Hearst by the Boston branch at the conclusion of their last meeting prior to their delegates leaving for the convention.

Resolutions will also be offered expressing the thanks of the state branch to Senator Sterling, of South Dakota, and Congressman Lilelach, of New Jersey, for their effective work in procuring the passage of retirement legislation.

A general resolution of thanks to the press of the country will also be introduced.

Better conditions for substitutes will be sought in the discussion, and resolutions calling for this change will be proposed.

INDIVIDUAL ACTION.

FREDERICK W. DALLINGER, Congressman Eighth Massachusetts District:

In spite of the loyalty of the postal employes, it is only a question of months before the postal service will be almost totally demoralized if Congress fails to increase their salaries.

The business of transportation and distribution of the mails, of letters, second class matter, registered articles, special delivery packages and of parcel post, is from necessity highly organized and is so dependent upon the individual experience and efficiency of the postal employes that demoralization of the service will surely follow the resignation in large numbers of the experienced employes.

The individual employe is such a high type in education and character that he cannot be expected to remain in the service unless he can so easily receive a larger salary in private enterprise.

As a result it can be expected that a failure on the part of Congress to act will result in wholesale resignations, which in turn will result in even poorer postal service than we have become accustomed to since Postmaster-General Burleson began his slave driver regime.

Congress acutely aroused what is known as the reclassification commission to study, among other things, the question of postal salaries. Having created such a committee Congress has quite naturally waited for the commission to report the findings resulting from the careful investigations it had made. Congress still waits, because of the fact that we are having daily assurances that the report is nearing completion days when the report will be forthcoming.

TRGES RELIEF.

Since both the House and Senate leaders contemplate an adjournment or a recess on June 5, if the report of the reclassification commission is not ready in such time before that date to permit favorable action will be possible, temporary legislation must be put through to "hold over" the employes, or relief until permanent legislation can be passed.

PETITION TO CONGRESS

To the Congress of the United States:

I appeal to the members of Congress to use their influence in securing the passage of legislation which will provide a suitable, living wage for the employes of the postal service.

I ask that some action be taken to prevent the continued and increasing number of resignations of highly-trained, capable and efficient employes, who are forced to seek other lines of business, with a consequent impairment of the postal service.

I appeal to Congress for immediate action, on the part of two hundred and fifty thousand postal employes, in order to save the postal service from complete collapse.

chase shoes, clothing and other necessary articles, from the quartermaster department of the United States Army, will be among the resolutions aimed at combating the cost of living, and other resolutions will ask that the government furnish at least one uniform suit each year to the carriers. At present the letter carriers are obliged to buy all their uniforms, the government giving no gratuity of any kind for this purpose.

Thirty days' vacation will be asked in another set of resolutions to be offered by the Boston delegation, instead of the present two weeks. As matters now stand, the most rigid rules for lost time are in vogue in the Post Office Department. Sickness, the death of near relatives, or other causes equally important, receive no consideration.

The pay of employes is "docked" when they lose a day or an hour for any of the above mentioned reasons. Length of service has no weight. Men thirty years in the service of the department equally with men who have been postal employes for thirty days or thirty hours.

Remedies for this severe treatment will be sought by the convention. It is felt universally by the postal employes of the United States that conditions produced by this policy of the department are intolerable. One employe of many years' standing, whose entire career was devoted to the service, was "docked" as he lay upon a sick bed which proved to be his death bed as well.

Draws Only $1,400 After Six Years' Service

No stronger proof of the need for radical changes in the pay of postal workers is needed than the experience of one of the railway mail clerks at the South Terminal Station, who, after six years of service, is getting $1,400 a year, or only $100 per year more than the present entrance salary.

This man entered the service at a time when he got no extra day off. His first assignment was from Northampton to New Haven, five days a week, bringing him a compensation of about $14 for the five days. His expenses for those five days were $16.

HOME EVERY 12 DAYS.

He was transferred to the Hartford-Sayville line on a six-day run at the same salary, and here his expenses were $18. After three months he was transferred to the Cape Cod run, where he worked from 5 a. m. to 7.30 p. m. After working in the Grand Central Terminal, New York, and on the Boston-New York run, he was sent to make the Springfield-New York run. He was given a travel allowance on this run of 26 cents per day. His home was in Fall River, Mass., and he was obliged to maintain rooms both in New York and in Springfield on 26 cents a day. He got home once in 12 days while on this trail.

Finally he came to the South Station, some three years since. At first he worked six days a week and "dead headed" between his home in Fall River and Boston. Then he was offered a permanent assignment here. To refuse meant to lose his seniority. He accepted. This pass was taken up, and to get from his work to his home he was obliged to pay $20 a month.

$1925 IN 32 YEARS.

This man, like his co-workers, has to keep familiar with the 1,749 sections of the postal laws and regulations, on which every postal mail clerk is examined once a year.

He has to take quarterly examinations on the distribution schemes, involving several thousand cards. The clerks must attain 88⅓ per cent. perfect in this examination, and in order to do this they must put in at least two hours a day studying changes.

They work eight hours, six days a week. For overtime they receive only their regular pay or in fact less, since, if they work six days' overtime, they lose a day.

fe in this State. For a doctor to commit such a crime was doubly atrocious.

The State has attepted to refute these assaults of the doctor by Hibbs. They have had witnesses who have attempted to prove that the doctor could not have been with Jennie at the times she says. But I know, and believe you gentlemen know, that Jennie told the truth in her testimony. In my twenty-six years at the bar I have never seen a witness whose memory was so good. Not one statement made by Jennie has been contradicted."

Attorney McKechnie closed his address with the following injunction:

"The only verdict that will do justice to mankind, the only verdict that will teach young men, particularly young professional men, that the honor of the daughters of the poor is sacred, is a verdict of acquittal.

"The district attorney will tell you that this woman took the law into her own hands. He will tell you that in order to protect your sons and other men from such attacks you must find her guilty.

"I am as firm a believer in law and order as anyone. But this State has always been famous for the honor and protection it gave its women. It has been a state of chivalrous men and pure women.

"It has taught the entire country the value of a pure name. It has never countenanced the destruction of a woman's honor. There is plenty of law on which you can acquit this girl. You have got to protect the purity of your daughters, your sweethearts and your sisters.

"Honorable marriage means nothing to this defendant now. But she has the promise of kind friends if she is acquitted that she will be taken into their home and enabled to start life anew. She will ge given a chance for happiness."

WOOD RELIES ON LEGAL FLAW

Woolen Mill Head Condemned and Praised by Workers at Lawrence

Textile Workers of Lawrence demanding that the competition be pushed and that there be no "white-washing."

WANT TO SEE BOOKS.

Spokesmen for the workers have threatened to call a one-day strike for Tuesday as showing approval of the indictment of their employer, and their protest at continued high and low prices.

One of the first steps, once the jury is drawn in United States District Court in New York, will be the requisitioning of all the books and private papers of the American Woolen Company—both the manufacturing company of Massachusetts and the selling concern in New York. Highly interesting developments are promised if the books are opened.

The investigation which preceded the indictment was cut short when Mr. Wood sent to these documents before the salaries of lists of officers and other much-wanted information could be secured.

Notwithstanding these facts, the investigators maintain that they learned enough to convince them that President Wood's claims to fairness are not founded on fact.

85 INSTEAD OF 75 CENTS.

They will attempt so prove, for instance, that the company makes $1 instead of 75 cents on each suit of clothing made from American Woolen cloth.

They will try to show that while 50,000,000 yards of cloth brought only $36,000,000 in 1915, 76,000,000 yards were sold for $262,000,000 in 1918. The increase was even greater in the last two years, they declare, and they expect to be corroborated by actual figures.

If President Wood is confident of acquittal, his prosecutors are no less certain of conviction. Herbert C. Smyth, special procurator for the government, was in conference with Attorney General Palmer. From his office came the statement that "the information upon which indictment was found was correct in every detail."

Miss Rosalind Wood, daughter of the accused millionaire, issued a statement from New York, in which expressing her faith in him and her expectation that he would be exonerated.

Miss Wood is the patroness of the Patriotic Yarn Association, which relied largely on her for disabled officers of the allies.

FELLOW WORKERS.

At the Andover estate, "Arden," Mr. Wood entertained appreciation of the confidence of the "loyal" workers who surrounded him, after they had been released by their foremen before quitting time for that purpose.

In a speech beginning "fellow workers" he said he was ignorant of the charges against him, but would disprove them.

The 10,000 Lawrence mill workers who crowded Wood rent their telegram demanding a vigorous prosecution to Attorney-General Palmer and Senator Lodge. They stated that Wood was "preparing the public for a whitewashing of profiteers," and that he was counting on

10,000 TO PARADE IN BOSTON IN HONOR OF WORLD WAR DEAD

OPEN AIR MASS AT FENWAY

Governor Coolidge and Other Civil and Military Officials to Attend Tomorrow

Memorial Day in Boston this year brings a day of solemn observance unparalleled in history since the days closely following the Civil War.

The graves of hundreds of Boston's sons who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War as well as those of the veterans of previous wars will be decorated with solemn and appropriate services.

State, city, military and civil organizations will participate in the observance of the day.

Notable among the exercises will be the field day services for the men and women of the country who died in the late war, which will be held in Fenway Park, tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

GOVERNOR TO ATTEND.

Governor Coolidge and staff, Mayor Peters, Generals Edwards and Ruckman and Admiral Dunn Gardner will take parts in the exercises in the park.

Incident to the services, which will be a military solemn high mass, there will be a parade including 5,000 uniformed men representing the regular army, navy, marines, state guardsmen, American Legion, United Spanish War Veterans and the G. A. R.

Members of the Francis G. Kane Post, American Legion, of Dorchester, together with members of the G. A. R. and the Bunker Hill Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, will decorate the graves of soldiers in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury, Monday, later the ceremonies will attend a service at the Soldiers' Monument in Eaton Square.

The committee includes James I. Murphy, commander; Francis X. Sheehan, vice-commander; Henry J. Dixon, chaplain, and Frederick Lewis Sullivan and Walter R. White.

SOUTH BOSTON EXERCISES.

Veteran organizations of South Boston, including Dahlgren Post 2, Washington Post 32, Major O'Connor Camp, Spanish War Veterans, and the Michael J. Perkins Post, American Legion, will participate in the solemn high mass at Fenway Park tomorrow. On Monday the same posts will visit Old and New Calvary Cemeteries and decorate the graves of their former Comrades.

On Monday morning, at City Point, Lithgrow Post 2, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will scatter flowers into Dorchester Bay in memory of the unknown who died at sea, and at Augustine Cemetery, Dorchester street, will also be visited by Post 2.

Veterans of three wars will take part in the Memorial Day exercises of the South Boston Post, American Legion, will carry the veterans over the nine-mile route of the parade, extending from Thomas Park, City Point, Weymouth, to South Weymouth. The Grand Army, American Legion and Spanish War Veterans will visit the four Weymouth cemeteries and school children will form at the entrances to the various cemeteries and accompany the men to the graves of soldiers and sailors.

JOIN FOR SERVICES.

Post 40, G. A. R., of Malden, assisted by the Malden post of the American Legion and the Spanish War Veterans, will hold exercises Monday. The parade will form at 8 o'clock and go to Forest Dale Cemetery.

Gettysburg Post of Boston, veterans from the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, will hold exercises at Forest Hills cemetery. Members of Charlestown and East Boston posts of the American Legion will go to Holy Cross and several Spanish War camps from Boston will also hold exercises at Holy Cross.

Veterans of three wars will unite in the Medford Memorial Day exercises. S. C. Lawrence Post No. 66, G. A. R., the Spanish War Veterans and Medford Post, American Legion, will parade. The services will decorate graves at the Salem and Cross streets cemeteries.

Post No. 4, G. A. R., of Melrose, will be assisted by Melrose Post of the American Legion and the Spanish War Veterans, in the morning parade and form at Memorial Hall and proceed to Wyoming Cemetery.

The Grand Army veterans in Malden and the other organizations on foot and motor cycle will be served by the veterans by the women's organizations in Memorial Hall. In the evening a Memorial Day service will be exercises at which Lieutenant Governor Cox will be the orator.

James A. Perkins Post, G. A. R., of Everett; Everett Post of the American Legion and the veterans of the Spanish War will decorate graves at Woodlawn Cemetery. A parade will form at Everett square at 9 o'clock and march to Woodlawn Cemetery.

Memorial Day is to be observed at St. Paul's Cathedral by a special service at 4:30 p. m. The address will be made by Rev. Henry K. Chenery, rector of the Church of Our Saviour, Longwood, who was chaplain of Base Hospital No. 6.

"Red Shirts" Battle for Prizes

It was a gala day at South Braintree today.

The "Red Shirts" held their second annual muster and field day and thousands of people flocked to town to witness the events. It was held under the auspices of the South Braintree Veteran Firemen's Association. The muster was on French's Common, with races and other athletic events, followed by a dance in the evening. A parade opened the festivities.

A general holiday was observed by the townspeople, with the closing of the numerous factories in the afternoon. The main streets and principal buildings were decorated with flags and colored bunting. A long line of automobiles drove into the square and parked for the rest of the day, and from the station there was a continuous stream of incoming visitors.

Close to 1,000 "Red Shirts" were on hand, to engage in the friendly rivalry with their respective tubs. The event was the biggest and most successful that has ever been recorded in the annals of the organization.

HOW THE TUBS CAME IN.

Braintree and Brockton each had three tubs entered in the contest. South Braintree and Quincy had two. The following is the order in which the companies competed in the muster:

1, Hancock of Brockton; 2, Raw Bone of Quincy; 3, Enterprise of Brockton; 4, Protector of Brockton; 5, the General Edwards of Quincy; 6, Hingham Vets of Hingham; 7, Hutcher Boy of South Braintree; 8, Corbato of Braintree; 9, Protection of Ameshury; 10, Union of East Braintree; 11, Red Jacket of East Cambridge; 12, Monatiquot of South Braintree.

The measure of interest prevailed between the teams coming from the same cities, the Hancock with other Brockton tubs, and the Raw Bone and General Edwards of Quincy. The last named is a new one.

FIRST PAGE $100.

Five judges decided the contest among them being Chief Tenney, Chief Dailey of Brockton and Chief Langford of Quincy. Chief Tenney presided over the board of judges. The prizes were divided as follows: First, $100; second, $75; third, $50; four, $20; fifth, $5.

The program opened with a parade in the afternoon. This was formed at the South Braintree station, with all twelve tubs in line, with the local fire department in the lead. It proceeded through the principal streets, then to French's Common, where the contest began by signal from the fire alarm.

After the last tub participated, and the prize winners were announced, a patriotic song was sung by a group of demonstrators from Boston. Races and other athletic events for men and women followed.

The Hancock of Brockton, from past performances, enjoys the distinction of holding the world's record as far as hurling streams of water is concerned. Under foreman "Lon" Willis of Brockton Heights, the crew has forced a stream to a distance of 268 feet 8½ inches. This took away the laurels from the crew of the General Butler of Lowell, who are accredited with a stream of 259 feet 6 inches, which was the record at that time. The Hancock is the Cowing type of engine and since its participation in musters it has won $14,477 in prizes.

ALL HAVE RECORDS.

Butcher Boy has a record of 183 feet 2¼ inches under the foremanship of George Young. It was built in 1882 and was originally used at the Brighton Abattoir where it has done distinguished service. It has participated in numerous musters, and several years ago it was acquired by the present South Braintree organization.

Monatiquot has a record of 241 feet, according to Andrew Schultz, its foreman. It was originally owned by the Waltham team and was used in the Watch City for thirty years. Two years ago it was acquired by the South Braintree Veteran Firemen's Association for $600, according to Nicholas, the president of the club. It is of the Button type, having the pump handles on the sides. From fifty to sixty men are used during its operation.

HONOR U. S. DEAD IN FRANCE

Memorial Services Will Be Held on All Battlefields Tomorrow

Paris, May 28.—Impressive memorial services for the American soldier dead will be held throughout France tomorrow.

Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, will lay a wreath upon the statue of "The American Doughboy" in the Suresnes Cemetery and Marshal Petain will deliver an address during the ceremony. Colonel Francis Drake of the Paris post of the American Legion will head a delegation that will place a wreath upon the statue of Lafayette in the Picpus Cemetery.

In addition to the official ceremonies thousands of French peasant families will put their tribute of flowers upon the graves of fallen Americans in the rural districts. Children will largely predominate here.

Major General John F. O'Ryan will be the chief speaker at the ceremony at Bony, where the Twenty-Seventh Division lost many men.

Combined Franco-American services will be held at a number of places on the old Aisne-Marne battlefield where the Americans took a leading part in the final campaign of the war. Ceremonies will be held in Belleau wood, where the marines checked the last wild lunge of the Germans on the road to Paris; at Chateau Thierry and Pere-en-Tardenois. Equally impressive services will be held in the big area north of Verdun and in the old St. Mihiel sector.

The grave of Captain Quentin Roosevelt on the Marne battlefield will be decorated by members of the American Legion.

Gen. Pershing Speaks at Harvard Exercises

General John J. Pershing will be guest of honor and will deliver the principal address at memorial exercises in honor of Harvard's war dead, which will begin at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. At that hour members of the Harvard corporation and board of overseers, members of the faculty and about 450 members of the Harvard Regiment and a number of old and young veterans will assemble in Harvard yard, near Widener Library.

At 3:30 o'clock President Lowell will conduct General Pershing, Governor Coolidge and other distinguished guests from the president's residence to Harvard yard. General Pershing will lay a wreath in honor of Harvard men who gave their lives for their country. Those include the name of Lieutenant-Colonel James A. Shannon, after whom the Harvard Post, American Legion, has been named.

The party will march to Sanders Theatre on Cambridge street, Cambridge, where, after prayer has been offered by Bishop Lawrence, General Pershing will deliver the commemoration address.

Among those joining in the exercises, including General Pershing, Governor Coolidge, Bishop Lawrence and President Lowell, will be: Colonel C. Marshall, Jr., and Colonel Quekemeyer, aides to General Pershing; Major Theodore Lyman, General Collardet, French military attache; Colonel Marquis Vittorio di Bernezzo, Italian military attache; Captain Carly Huntington, his aide, and Major Sampson, aide to Governor Coolidge, and one or two Belgian diplomatic representatives. The motor battery of Harvard's Field Artillery Unit will be represented by Captain R. C. Goetz.

2,500 IN PITTSFIELD GET RAISE MONDAY

Pittsfield, May 29.—Cotton mills in this city and Dalton will inaugurate a new wage scale Monday morning affecting about 2500 mill operatives.

MILLION-DOLLAR FREIGHT THEFT

Railroad Official Involved in Looting of Cars in Jersey City Yards

New York, May 29.—Coincident with the arrest of ten men, the police announced they will soon arrest an important railroad official who has been the directing genius of a gang that has stolen several million dollars' worth of freight.

As an example of the scale on which the gang worked, it was said that a freight car was detached from a train and put on a siding at Soho, N. J., where its entire contents were stolen.

It is charged that the gang included many railroad employes, including dispatchers and checkers, who used their jobs to facilitate the robberies. The Jersey City yards were the centre for operations. Over a million dollars' worth of stolen freight was recovered in the investigation that led to the arrests.

Among the men arrested were William and Emil Lichtefeld, a wholesale grocer firm. They were held in $20,000 bail by United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock, on a charge of conspiring to defraud the government. The other prisoners were held in bail in varying amounts.

10,000,000 POUNDS OF SUGAR ON WAY TO HUB

Two shiploads of cane sugar are scheduled to arrive here next week. The steamer Lake Butler, from Cuba, is due tomorrow, and on Tuesday the Lake Cayuga should arrive from the same island. Between them they have 10,486,000 pounds of sugar. The sugar will be refined at the Revere Sugar Refining Company's plant in Charlestown.

REDUCE CAR FARE TO REVERE BEACH

Through car service between Hoodoin square and Revere Beach, with a 15-cent fare, a reduction of five cents, will be inaugurated tomorrow. The service will be in effect all day on Sunday and holidays, on afternoons and evenings of Saturday and week-day nights. Advantage of the reduced fare can also be taken by transferring from other routes.

TODD TO USE PLANE FOR MARS SIGNALS

Stamford, Conn., May 29.—Prof David Todd said that he will make an effort in an aeroplane to catch signals from Mars during June, when that planet will be only 36,000,000 miles from the earth. It will not be so near again for 500 years. Prof. Todd will be in a plane driven by Major R. W. Schroeder, holder of the world's altitude record.

HOTEL WORKER JUMPS OUT WINDOW IN SLEEP

North Adams, May 29.—Jumping through a closed window while walking in his sleep came near proving fatal for Henry Reed, twenty-two, employed at the Richmond Hotel as a houseman. Reed arose from his bed and while asleep jumped through a glass window onto a veranda. He received numerous cuts.

WORCESTER POPULATION REPORTED AT 190,000

Worcester, May 29.—Worcester has a population of about 189,000, it is reported today on good authority. While the exact figure has not as yet been announced by the census bureau, it will be near this figure. This is a gain of 24 per cent. in the last 10 years but is smaller than a majority of citizens expected.

TROOPS GUARD BRISTOL, R. I.

Strike Riots Cause Governor to Declare Town in State of Insurrection

No attempt was made to open the plant of the National India Rubber Company, striking employes created the disorders when strike-breakers were brought in by Boston detectives.

Following Governor Beeckman's proclamation that the town of Bristol was in a state of insurrection, three military organizations were rushed here. Upon demand of Major C. L. D. Wells, reinforced today by the Seventh Company, Corps of Coast Artillery.

The troops established headquarters on the Common, and patrols were immediately sent out, with the result that threatened retaliations failed to take place.

"I consider the town of Bristol in a state of insurrection and lives and property must be protected. The militia shall remain at Bristol until the town authorities give assurance that they can handle the situation," said Governor Beeckman.

Rumors that a Boston detective agency had spirited workers into town started the trouble. The strike leaders called on all strikers, men and women, to await the arrival of the cars and forcibly interfere if they termed strike breakers. Led by their leaders the strikers threw stones at the cars, slightly injuring passengers.

Under a strong guard of out-of-town protectors the procession started for the mill gates. Women grasped clothing and hair of strike breakers and a lively tussle ensued. Men crowded around the procession resulting in guards drawing revolvers and threatening to shoot unless the way was made clear through the mill gates.

At this time shots were heard from a house opposite the mill gates. It is said by the police that women fired the revolvers from the windows.

RIOT FOLLOWS SHOTS.

An order to "protect yourself," given to the militiamen, resulted in the discharge of revolvers and Cosimo Forti and Angelo Pierri fell to the ground wounded. The sight of their fellows on the ground tended to increase the anger of the strikers and a riot followed, resulting in many bruised heads.

Pierri and Forti were hurried to the Rhode Island General Hospital, was slightly wounded and sent to his home, while Forti is on the danger list with a bullet in his abdomen and is not expected to live.

Drawn revolvers by guards and police, numbering over one hundred, had a quieting effect and the mob dispersed.

Rumors to "burn the town" were made on street corners and the Town Council met to take drastic steps to preserve order. Police Chief Thomas Dwyer said he could not cope with the situation.

The Council called on Governor Beeckman for assistance. The Company, Coast Artillery, with Troops C and D of the cavalry, under command of Major C. L. D. Wells, Captains Samuel Hall and Earl W. Chandler of the cavalry, reported to the town and made headquarters on the common.

BAR WORKERS FROM STREETS.

The troops drove into town with Major Wells in command. He immediately gave orders that no man or woman was to be on the streets without a military pass during the stay of the militia in the town.

Cavalrymen patrolled the town during the night with no reports of disorders. Government officials today made searching investigation into the cause of the chaos.

A number of strike leaders are said to be under arrest to be called before the authorities and their deportation asked for.

The rubber company is controlled by Colonel Samuel P. Colt, and it is said that Colonel Colt will close down the plant indefinitely unless the disorder subsides.

Rumors declaring the workers say they have been contented with their conditions until the plants were attacked by strikers by foreigners, who are said by the police to be propagandists and came to create a turmoil in labor circles.

BRIDE ARRESTED IN HULL THEFT CASE

Mrs. May Sullivan, aged nineteen, a bride of six weeks, was arraigned in her home at Drew avenue, East Weymouth, by the Hingham police and turned over to Chief of Police Frank Reynolds of Hull. Mrs. Sullivan's husband is second in connection with the larceny of goods, valued at $1,500, from Summer cottages at Hull and Nantasket.

The arrest followed the confession of Karl Leaf of Quincy, who appeared in the Hingham Court. Leaf in his confession to the Hull police, implicated others in the robbery. A third arrest is expected today.

INDICT 3 MORE AS SUGAR PROFITEERS

New York, May 29.—Morris Spirt of Waterbury, Conn., and two others of this city were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for profiteering in sugar. The information states that they purchased 52,000 pounds of sugar from L. Rudolf of Waterbury at the rate of 18.87 cents a pound and sold it at 25 cents a pound in this city.

A similar indictment was found against the Economy Wholesale Grocery Company, which is charged with selling 60,000 pounds at 24 cents which they purchased at 15¾ cents.

FIVE SOCIALISTS ARE DENIED U. S. CITIZENSHIP

New York, May 29.— Five applicants were refused naturalization as citizens by the state Supreme Court in Brooklyn because they are Socialists. Justice Benedict held that the five came within the law that the demands that applicants be well disposed toward the "good order and happiness" of the United States. Of 1,576 applicants during an eleven-day term of court, Justice Benedict dismissed 758.

Profiteer Made 100 to 175 P. C. on Suits

Binghamton, N. Y., May 29.—Profits ranging from 100 to 175 per cent. on a suit of clothes were exacted by Weeds, Inc., exclusive clothiers, fined $31,000 for profiteering.

The fine was the largest ever imposed in the United States for charging excessive prices.

The concern was convicted on seven counts. Six of the seven counts covered sales actually made. The profits on these sales, as brought out in court, were as follows:

Sale of a suit costing $20 for $40.
Sale of a suit costing $22.50 for $45.
Sale of a suit costing $17.92 for $45.
Sale of a suit costing $11-75 for $29.50.
Sale of a suit costing $32.38 for $60.

Millionaires were among the victims of the "exclusive" and expensive clothes shop.

UNION LABOR TO FIGHT FOR LIFE

Raises Large Defence Fund to Combat 'Open Shop' Propaganda

By International News Service.

Washington, May 29.—Union labor is raising a gigantic defence fund to fight what it claims is a nation-wide campaign by big employers to smash the trade union movement.

The International Association of Machinists is raising $4,250,000 a year to support a defence program by assessing each of its 350,000 members $1 a month, and other industrial and organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are said to be levying a like amount.

Reports received by the machinists and other international unions show chambers of commerce and other business men's organizations in the industrial centres are working to spread "open shop" propaganda and to force a "look out" of union men. They are also, it is said, banded together to fight collective bargaining. Labor leaders here say it is the beginning of a "finish fight and death" struggle for the unions.

So menacing has become the situation that the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which opens its sessions in Montreal June 7, is expected to take the ultimate step if all interests warring on crade unionism and to call on organized labor everywhere to resist the assault on its principles.

In cities where anti-union employers agitate and are locking out union men, organized labor is retaliating by boycotting those places and using every legitimate means to keep labor away.

Supports Family of 8 on $25 Weekly

How would you like to bring up six sturdy youngsters on $25 a week?

Imagine clothing, feeding and educating this lively family on the allotment that many girls spend on luxuries.

The problem of a living for these six children has its simple phases, according to Arthur Wells of Revere, whose husband, employed for eighteen years as a clerk in the postal service, has succeeded in keeping them healthy and happy on wages varying in the last few years from $1,200 to $1,450, with extra hours and no vacations.

"I don't need to worry about the price of georgette crepe and the rise in sables," Mrs. Wells said at her office, and works Sundays for the overtime.

THE SHOE PROBLEM.

"Shoes are another problem," Mrs. Wells continued. "We get the most substantial kind that we can afford, but this is what happens."

She lifted the "stuffed" toe on the shoe of John, her three-year-old boy.

"I want them to be out of doors all they can, but it is discouraging to see the shoes go like paper. My husband sits and mends the worn shoes."

Mrs. Wells praised the work of the Associated Charities and declared: "My children are always well. I am thankful to say, but my husband is often incapacitated on account of the strain of his work.

"Before the parcel post was established I had to go to the city myself, but now there are heavy packages to be handled, and there are long hours when he is standing without any relief. He has had trouble with his feet and has incurred several dust infections from the ill-ventilated basement conditions. There is no allowance in the postal service for sickness, so every day of illness means not only medical expense, but the loss of a day's pay.

"My husband has not had one day with his family for four years. He has spread-over hours a day at the office, and works Sundays for the overtime.

THE MONTHLY BUDGET.

"But to provide good food at the present prices, is a tax on my energy and my ingenuity. I keep strict account of what I buy, and it is encouraging to realize that in three years not one staple food has come down in price."

Here are items from the monthly budget of the Wells family:

Milk, $15; butter, $7; eggs, $15; meat, $12; groceries and flour, $25; rent, $22.50.

"Doctors' bills? We just can't afford to get sick," Mrs. Wells declared. "My children are always well, I am thankful to say, but my husband is often incapacitated on account of the strain of his work.

SINN FEIN HAVE POLICE FORCE

Arrest Five Men at Skibbereen, Prisoners Being Accused in Postoffice Raid

By International News Service.

London, May 29.—Sinn Feiners have established a police organization at Skibbereen, according to news from Dublin today. Five men were arrested in that town by police and charged with participation in a postoffice raid.

Four of the men are accused of receiving gold that had been found hidden in a box of soap, and which was subsequently identified by a postman.

The strike of dock workers and railmen continues in effect at Dublin because of their refusal to handle munitions consigned to Ireland.

The Irish strike leaders are disappointed over the action of the railway workers in England from whom they had expected support.

The Dublin correspondent of the Daily Express says that repeal of the curfew law may be expected about June 1, but that the passing of a person from being on the street at night without a government permit.

NEW BEDFORD MILL ON FIVE-DAY BASIS

New Bedford, May 29 — Officials of the National Spun Silk Mills have posted a notice in the plant to the effect that the mill will operate on a five-day week schedule until further notice. Five hundred operatives are affected by the curtailment schedule.

MOODY BOYNTON ADJUDGED SANE

Inventor of Single Track Railway Freed From Government Hospital

Eben Moody Boynton, inventor of a single track railroad which he claims will revolutionize transportation, has been adjudged sane by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and freed from the Government Hospital.

He has been the defendant in lunacy proceedings ever since last March, when the Interstate Commerce Commission had him taken into custody.

The Commission based its charges of insanity on the persistency of the Boston scientist in forcing his invention upon them.

Boynton conducted his own defence in the final legal battle. Hsharply cross-questioned the alienist who said he was not legally competent, and was able to turn the laugh against them by his keen grasp of the situation.

As soon as his sanity was vindicated, the inventor announced that he would continue to press his single track railroad upon the government. He declares it will save the railroads of the nation $50,000,000 a day.

Boynton has spent a fortune of $1,000,000 in the recognition of his invention. He built a "sample" railroad with a single track on Long Island.

His home is in West Newbury, but he has spent much of his time in this city. Although he has four grown daughters, he adopted the three children in charge, Charlotte E. Nickerson, a Byfield widow, several years ago.

Court Rules 'Wire Cake' Eaters May Collect

New York, May 29.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court holds that a person who loses teeth as the result of biting a piece of wire in a cake is entitled to recover damages from the baker.

The finding of the Appellate Division is as follows:

"We are of the opinion that the defendant which manufactured the cake in question and which placed the same upon the market and sold the same to the retailer, from whom the plaintiff was to dispose of the cake to a customer, implicitly warrants that said cake was wholesome and fit for human consumption and that it did not contain wire or nail which injured the plaintiff, the ultimate consumer of the cake."

MISS ELIZABETH HOAR IS BRIDE AT CONCORD

Concord, May 29.—Society folks in large numbers attended the wedding here this afternoon of Miss Elizabeth Hoar, daughter of Mrs. Edward Hoar and George Ayer Parsons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Parsons of No. 115 Pleasant street, Brookline. The ceremony was performed in the First Parish (Unitarian) Church by Rev. Loren B. Macdonald, assisted by the Rev. Smith Owen Dexter. The bride was given in marriage by her mother. Miss Helen B. Buttrick of Concord was the maid of honor, and there were four bridesmaids. Miss Olive Buttrick, Miss Antoinette N. Deer, Mrs. Francis R. McCook and Mrs. Alexander A. Cameron. Alexander A. Cameron of Westford was best man and Siedman B. Hoar was head usher.

GRILLING GIRL IN BARNEY HUNT

Young Cambridge Woman, Former Sweetheart of Convict, Is Quizzed by Police for him, although their relations were broken off.

While Barney's former sweetheart was being examined by the inspectors, efforts of other officials were being centred in the South End to hunt for Ward, who, it is believed strongly, is in hiding in the section occupied largely by negroes.

A patrolman on duty on Washington street, south of Northampton, saw a negro who disappeared in a doorway realizing that he was being tracked. Search of the house and several others in the vicinity was unavailing.

The hunt for Ward, however, was not confined to the South End. Back of the Prison Point railroad roundhouse near the prison, in Somerville, Maine engineer saw a negro who answered Warda's description, wearing khaki pants, soft hat, brown shoes and a dark coat. A squad of Chelsea-Lowell police responded to his call, but failed to find the suspect, who, it was theorized, had been waiting an opportunity to steal a ride on an outbound freight car.

SEARCHING SUMMER RESORTS.

The search for the trio outside of the city was shifted to the Summer resorts around Boston, to eliminate the chance that Manster may have sought refuge in that territory, which is familiar to him through frequent vacationing.

Chelsea experienced an escape thrill when an unlighted auto was pursued by the police from Chelsea square. They found only "joy ridgy" in the machine.

No hope was expressed, by the police that the efforts of Attorney Francis Juggins to induce his client, Barney, to surrender, would be successful. Juggins had stated that he was endeavoring to locate Barney and effect a move him from capture which might result in his death.

POLICEMAN AIDED ESCAPE.

At the State Prison it was revealed how the forgetfulness of a prison official and the carelessness of a Charlestown policeman combined into the chain of circumstances that enabled the trio to get away from the prison grounds.

Deputy Assistant Warden Hogsett was the official, according to Warden Shattuck. Hogsett was awakened by the prison alarm in his home shortly when the escape was discovered. Rushing out through the backyard, Hogsett came to the prison wall. Then he remembered he had forgotten his revolver.

When he returned the men were out of sight but he started to chase them. At this moment a policeman passed by and while Hogsett was frantically explaining to the insistent policeman the nature of his haste the convicts had made their escape secure.

TRACEY WAS IN PLOT.

That Frank J. Tracey, who with Ralph Sweeney is under sentence to life for the murder of Samuel Cohen, a junk dealer in the South End in 1919, was in the plot to escape was made known by Sanford Bates, State commissioner of correction, after a study of the plot and Tracey's complicity, the lifer was separated from the other suspects.

Questioning of other prisoners had resulted in Deputy Warden Henry being informed by one of the ill-ventilated basement conditions. There is no allowance in the postal service for sickness, so every day of illness means not only medical expense, but the loss of a day's pay.

"My husband has not had one day with his family for four years. He has spread-over hours a day at the office, and works Sundays for the overtime.

THE SHOE PROBLEM.

"Shoes are another problem," Mrs. Wells continued. "We get the most substantial kind that we can afford, but this is what happens."

She lifted the "stuffed" toe on the shoe of John, her three-year-old boy.

"I want them to be out of doors all they can, but it is discouraging to see the shoes go like paper. My husband sits and mends the worn shoes."

Mrs. Wells praised the work of the Associated Charities and declared: "My children are always

GAGE WILL LEAVES $2,500 TO CHARITIES

Charitable bequests amounting to $2,500 are made in the will of Sarah A. Gage of Somerville. She leaves $500 to the Old Ladies' Home, Somerville; $1,000 to St. John's Episcopal Church, Charlestown, and $500 to the Animal Rescue League. After a number of private bequests she leaves the residue of her estate to the Animal Rescue League and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. No valuation of the estate was filed.

GOVERNOR HALTS N. Y. HARBOR STRIKE

New York, May 29.—All prospects of a general strike of harbor workers were eliminated when Governor Smith intervened in the strike of coastwise longshoremen. The governor held a long conference with T. V. O'Connor and Joseph Ryan, international union officials at the Biltmore Hotel. The Governor later said the strike could be settled.

FIREMEN RESCUE MAN FROM ELEVATOR WELL

The entire fire apparatus of the South End was called by an excited citizen to the corner of Tremont and Thirty-nine years old, from the elevator well at the apartment house at 62 West Concord street. He collapsed in the City Hospital, where upon regaining consciousness it was found he was suffering with contusions and abrasions of the left leg. He went to his home.

PROPOSE CREATION OF CHELSEA CAR DISTRICT

It is proposed to divide the North Suburban district of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway Company, commonly known as the Chelsea, into two districts, Everett, the reminder of the North Suburban district will be known as the Melrose district. A petition to this effect and a hearing on the proposal will be held by the public trustees, June 1.

PRINTING TRADES TO SHUN LABOR PARTY

New York, May 29.—The Allied Printing Trades Council, the central organization of twenty-two unions of the printing trades, with 20,000 members, announced that it would follow the example of the American Federation of Labor and advise its members against participating in the American Labor party.

CAN THIS MAN WIN?

Johnson Can Restore Confidence in Government

The fifth article of the American's unique review of Republican presidential possibilities, dealing with Senator Hiram W. Johnson, follows:

By ANGUS McSWEEN,
Eastern Campaign Manager for Hiram Johnson.

By his demonstration of popular strength in the direct primary States, Senator Hiram W. Johnson has made himself a leading candidate for the Republican nomination, and I am confident, will be the convention's choice.

It is recognized that the League of Nations will be the big issue of the campaign. Senator Johnson's position on the league is certain to have the indorsement of the Republican convention, which will thereby recognize his leadership.

IS SUPERIOR STATESMAN.

When the various "favorite son" candidates have evaporated and the contest begins to narrow, the majority of the delegates will go to the support of Senator Johnson, not only in recognition of his leadership on the big issue of the campaign, but in recognition of his superior qualities of statesmanship and his availability.

It has been said by Republican leaders that any Republican nominee can win this year. Overconfidence has ruined many a cause. Unless the Republican party looks well to the selection of its 1920 candidates, it may face defeat again. A weak man, a man voters do not trust, cannot hope for election against a strong Democratic candidate.

Our country today is afflicted with the spirit of unrest. It is divided into antagonistic groups, each group suspicious of the others and each believing that the others are trying to exploit government for their own benefit. There is a prevailing lack of confidence in government. Unless there is chosen as President a man who can satisfy these groups, in whom these groups place their faith for the working out of domestic and international problems, there can follow only further exaggeration of grievances to a point where we will face national turmoil, if not national upheaval.

CAN RESTORE CONFIDENCE.

The great body of American citizens would be suspicious of every act of a President of known reactionary tendencies. On the other hand, recognition of these dissatisfied citizens by putting into office a man in whom they believe would restore confidence in government, would bring about a period of tranquility in business and domestic affairs which would mean uninterrupted national progress for a quarter of a century.

Such a man is Senator Hiram W. Johnson. His record of progressive legislation as Governor of California demonstrated that he is not only a great humanitarian, in complete touch with the public mind, but a sound and safe man in conserving the interests of legitimate business. Honest business has nothing to fear from Johnson. Dishonesty, whether it be found in the ranks of business or in the ranks of labor, will find in Johnson an implacable foe.

In California the representatives of big business and the representatives of union labor are working hand in hand for Johnson's nomination. His policy is based upon strict American ideals. And he enforces his policy.

IS ROOSEVELT'S SUCCESSOR.

He has proven himself a genuine successor to Theodore Roosevelt in popularity with the people. He has voting strength North, East, South and West, and in the Central States as well. He can sweep the country as no other man before the people can sweep it at the general election. He can put the Republican party, a party of progressive Americanism, into its old position of power. There is no other man before the people today of whom this can be so completely said.

Senator Johnson's availability, his appeal to the Republican party as the man to lead the party to certain victory, will be the telling arguments which will bring about his nomination at the Chicago convention.

Tuesday — Governor W. C. Sproul of Pennsylvania.

Gives 8 Practical Reasons Why Johnson Can Win

By BANCROFT ABBOTT,
Massachusetts Manager for Hiram Johnson.

Hiram Johnson will be nominated at Chicago as the Republican candidate for President for the following practical reasons:

1—The Republicans are more anxious than ever to elect their candidate this year. Merely nominating a candidate for President doesn't insure his election. We have had two sorry instances. They want the best vote getter in the party and Hiram Johnson would be that sort of a candidate above all others.

2—He is the only man of all candidates so far mentioned who stands absolutely and unqualifiedly for action in behalf of American homes. He is no milk-and-water candidate.

HIS POPULARITY GROWING.

3—Every delegate at Chicago is presumed to be interested in party success, either selfishly as a candidate for office himself, or unselfishly as one having faith in his party's good intentions. He wants at the head of the national ticket a man who will help the Republican ticket in every State.

4—It is already Johnson against the field in the convention. Every other candidate has already reached his limit and is now slipping. When a candidate hits the toboggan at a convention he never comes back. Enthusiasm is contagious. It is coming

SENATOR HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

Johnson's way now, will grow stronger and be all for Johnson in the convention.

5—Every Johnson delegate is a voluntary delegate. No bossism, no delivery in block, no trading. This makes an attractive delegate character which will exert a great moral influence. Johnson will gain on every ballot until he is nominated.

6—None but grafting politicians and monopolies are sore on Johnson. He has kept out of all the states where "favorite sons" were running, except in California, where Hoover tried to qualify as a "favorite son."

7—I understand that a movement is on foot to invite all the presidential candidates to address the convention before the nominations are made. Those opposing it are afraid Johnson would be too convincing.

IS MAGNET IN BAY STATE.

8—Above every other reason is this one: The American people want a real American—Hiram Johnson. Proof of it? Why, right here at headquarters in the American House, Boston, the Hiram Johnson Club of Massachusetts has enrolled without much effort over 20,000 voters, all voluntary workers for Johnson.

Johnson has worked without funds, done his own campaigning and has received more votes in the primaries than any two other candidates put together.

He is the most popular, most fearless, most inspiring, most sincere leader that the Republican party has known since Theodore Roosevelt, and the delegates at Chicago are not going to pass up the opportunity of putting him at the head of their forces this year and sweeping on to a Republican victory in November.

Johnson Record Guarantee He Will Reduce H. C. of L.

The writer of the following is aged 40. He knows a great deal about work and workers. He has risen from the ranks and today is an industrial relations expert.

By WILLIAM J. BARTON,
No. 56 East Falcon St., East Boston.

I am for Hiram Johnson for President because when he talks he knows what he is talking about. Furthermore, I know what he is talking about. In these days of camouflage, bunk and political hot-air, we ought to have a man in the White House whom the people can understand.

Hiram Johnson has always done good things. His handling of the Southern Pacific monopoly in California stamps him as a man who carries out his promises. Hiram Johnson tells us that he intends to reduce the high cost of living. He will do it if he has to jail every profiteer in America.

Hiram Johnson believes in the people. He has never been repudiated by a constituency. He will try to carry out the wishes of the people. He is in full possession of all his faculties. He will not repudiate the planks in his party platform. He will do what he says he will do, and not send for any whispering Colonel House to help him to change his mind.

As a Republican I am particularly for Hiram Johnson, this year, because I know he is the best vote getter in America, and will sweep the country off its feet in the November election. The party needs Johnson. The country needs him. I'm for Hiram.

IRISH CLUB WILL DISCUSS SHIP SALE

Members of the Intercolonial Club of Roxbury, those friendly to the Irish cause, are planning for a meeting of that organization to voice their protest against the Canadian Club of Boston and Canadians in this city, for the opposition they expressed to the Mason bill.

"How did Great Britain Get Ireland?" will be the subject of a discussion to be held in O'Reilly Hall, Hibernian Building, Roxbury, tomorrow evening, under the direction of the Cumann Na Gael. Another subject to be debated deals with the "influences behind the sale of the German ships owned by the United States, being the same as responsible for the reign of terror in Ireland, from the days of Cromwell down to the present." Members of Irish and kindred societies are invited to attend and take part in the discussions. Arrangements are completed for the great meeting of the Central Council of Irish County Associations to be held in Historic Hall, No. 1451 Washington street, South End, tomorrow night. Daniel T. O'Connell, head of the National Bureau of Information of the Friends of Irish Freedom in Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker.

"Kissing the Blarney Stone," is a favorite pastime of members of Irish societies attending the bazaar being held at Dudley Hall, No. 2289 Washington street, Roxbury, by the Daughters of Erin of the Gaelic school. The bazaar will continue tonight and Monday.

CLAIM LAXITY IN STREET PLANS

City Officials' Construction Program Is Prepared Too Late in Season

Laxity on the part of city officials in not planning street work early enough is given by local contractors as one of the principal reasons for the delay in putting Boston thoroughfares in proper condition.

"The trouble in this city," said a contractor who does considerable road building, "is that the city officials do their planning too late in the season. Very little real work is begun on Boston streets until June and July; that is why contractors seldom finish their contracts until November.

"Plans for street building and repair should be completed much earlier in the season so that work could begin early in May. If that were done much more could be accomplished. I believe the Boston American is doing good work in its campaign for better streets and it is going to help the contractors."

ASPHALT BROKEN UP.

On Smith street, Roxbury, an asphalt pavement was laid in the rain last Fall upon a mud foundation, according to officials of the Finance Commission. A portion of the pavement is now broken in small bits, as predicted soon after it was laid. The dirt foundation has worked through to the surface, as the Finance Commission's experts forecasted last Fall.

A portion of the street near Huntington avenue is now practically impassable, although the work was guaranteed for five years. Despite statements of President J. W. Hawes of the Bermudez Co., the figures in the city auditor's office say that $22,-992.95 of the estimated price of $24,-445.30 has been paid to the Bermudez Company for doing the work. Street Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan admits he has retained only $1,000 of the contract price.

PROTECTED BY BOND.

Hawes admits that he has taken up the matter of repaving the street with the street commissioner's office and that borings are to be made to determine whether there is an underground stream at this point, as the contracting firm claims. Hawes says that if his contention is not upheld by the borings his company will re-pave the street without additional cost to the city.

Commissioner Sullivan branded a report that he was going to pay the Bermudez company again for repaving Smith street as "ridiculous and foolish." He said that in addition to retaining $1000 of the contract price the city is protected for five years by a surety bond."

PLAZA'S EXTRADITION PAPERS ARE SIGNED

Manchester, N. H., May 29.—Governor John H. Bartlett signed extradition papers for the Rev. Stephen Plaza, under arrest in New York for the alleged embezzlement of $20,000 from the Polish Church of the Holy Cross in this city. The papers were taken to the Governor in Portsmouth by County Solicitor Timothy F. O'Connor and Deputy Sheriff R. M. O'Dowd, who caused the arrest of Plaza.

URGES PILGRIM AS EXAMPLE

Dr. Park Tells Free Religious Association Hard Work Aid to Morality

"Imitate the Pilgrim, by not being afraid of work, no matter whether you are capitalist or laborer," was the message which the Rev. J. Edgar Park of West Newton delivered before the Free Religious Association at its fifty-third annual meeting in Pilgrim Hall.

President Earl M. Wilbur of the Pacific Theological Seminary, California, defined the different principles of the Pilgrims and praised the way they promoted the equality of mankind.

"The Pilgrim made no exception with reference to race," he said.

"They were kind and considerate of the Indian and were not given to drawing the color line or promoting race prejudice. They had an ideal colony where their religion was morality in practice.

"If the Church of England had been as liberal in its policy 300 years ago as it is today there would have been no occasion to recount the good points of the Pilgrims now."

Dean Lee McCollester of Tufts College Theological School dwelt upon the life and achievements of William Brewster as an ideal member of the colony.

GAS GOES UP 4 CENTS FOR BERKSHIRES JUNE 1

North Adams, May 29.—An increase of 4 cents per hundred cubic feet for gas has been made effective in Adams and Williamstown, where no price has been legally established. The local gas company is to petition the Public Utilities Department for a similar increase in this city. The increase becomes effective June 1.

May Use Zeppelins in U. S. Air Service

Washington, May 29.—Huge airships, modelled exactly after the famous Zeppelins used by Germany during the world war, may become part of the aerial service of the United States army as a result of conferences about to be held here between army officials and representatives of a German airship firm.

Alfred Calaman, Otto Milats and William E. Dorr, representing the Zeppelin Airship Company, are in Washington and are understood to be ready to make proposals to the War Department whereby the United States either will acquire the Zeppelin patents or might purchase one or two of the cruisers as possible for future construction.

RECORD CROWD OUT FOR RED SOX-YANKEES DOUBLE-HEADER

PLAYERS FULL OF FIGHT

Locals Must Land Both Battles Today to Keep Home Series Record

By NICK FLATLEY.

Bullet Joe Bush and Sam Jones, right-hand pitchers, were prepared today to inaugurate the double-header season at Fenway Park and delight the largest crowd in history or something like that.

It looked like a big day for baseball, with Babe Ruth in his startling home run mood, the athletes peeved at one another, and the fight for the pennant already on full blast.

Manager Miller Huggins had a couple of very good southpaws for the double clash—Mogridge and Thormahlen. He also had a few right-siders in reserve. Hoyt and his bunch have gathered the idea that they can win the pennant and are fighting everybody, even umpires, to get away with ball games.

They have found a lot of pepper and look 100 per cent better than they did on their inaugural trip to these parts. It takes good pitching to hold back the assault that the little director has gathered round him, but Bullet Joe and Sampowell were equal to the task if they had all their stuff.

The Red Sox are naturally a bit peeved at these Yankees, who were soft picking earlier in the year just now they are tough eggs and have gathered in two games without the least difficulty. The Fenway foe hasn't lost a home series thus far, and to keep the slate clean must naturally collect both pastimes.

That second game of the series was a slow and not especially exciting affair. After the hard-hurly Tuesday the athletes were subdued, and the umpires had a pleasant day of it. There was only one, the same emanating from Babe Ruth when he was picked off first base. He looked to be out, but didn't think so, and hurled his hat up in the air and gesticulated and everything.

Hildebrand Was Patient With Babe

We thought that Umpire Hildebrand would exile him, but Hildy was lenient, as Babe wasn't near that mix-up the day previous. He just let the big slugger talk until his wrath were off, and gave the crowd something to laugh at.

Our recent home run idol didn't get in one of his long wallops, though he did hit .500. He was passed twice, dropped a single in right, because Harry Hooper had backed out in the triple zone, and grounded out to second. He scored the first Yank run, after a stroll in the second, put another tally on there with his hit, was purposely passed just before Allan Russell pushed over the winning counter by his wildness. So the Babe had a fairly active afternoon.

Russell went the distance, though never a great puzzle to the hostiles. A mass and two safeties manufactured a run in the second. Three belts accounted for another in the fifth; two hits and a long fly let one more in in the sixth; a couple more thumps and two strolls the ultimate in the eighth.

Russell Lost Control After Passing Ruth

Allan couldn't get them over after he lost the range on Ruth, and the bases being full at the time, a gift to Pratt brought the Yanks closer to the front. Allan might have been removed in the seventh, when a pinch hit would have tied things up for the Sox. But he was sent to bat and fanned. He repeated in the ninth, after Schang had opened up with a clean single to left.

FOREIGN STARS AT THE OVAL

Nat Butler Arranges Fine Card for First Saturday Night at Revere Track

CARD OF RACES.

25-Mile Motor Paced Race—George Wiley, Frank Corry, Leon Vanderstuyft.

Special Sprint Match (2 in 3)—Orlando Piani vs. Alec MacBeath.

Half-mile (novice), half-mile handicap (amateur), two-mile handicap (pro.).

Two-third mile handicap (pro.), miss and out (amateur). Five-mile open.

Nat Butler has arranged a classy card of events for his first Saturday night races meet with a 25-mile motor paced and a special sprint match topping the program.

In the motor-paced event the fans will have their first chance to get a line on the class of foreign stars who have invaded the country when Vanderstuyft matches his speed with Wiley and Corry, two of the speediest and best-known pluggers on the local circuit.

Two new-comers will also appear in the sprint match. Piani comes direct from Italy, having only had a couple of starts at Newark, in which he showed up well, while MacBeath is fresh from Australia, where he is reported to have beaten the best in the game.

The new arena has made a big hit with the fans and another large crowd is looked for.

BIG BOUTS ON AT LAWRENCE

New England Open Air Boxing Season Opens With a Bang at Cuddy's Arena

By JACK CONWAY.

Lawrence was the centre of the boxing world today, with three major league battles carded to be decided at the open-air arena of the Atlas A. A. Each contest was booked for twelve rounds and brought together one of the world's leading ring men. The complete card follows:

Johnny Dundee, New York, vs. Jack Lawlor, Omaha City.

Harry (Kid) Brown, Philadelphia, vs. Freddy Jacks, British featherweight champion.

Mel Coogan, Newark, vs. Pal Moran, New Orleans.

It was expected that this brilliant array of ring talent would attract a capacity crowd. Many fans planned to make the trip to Lawrence by auto, while others made arrangements to go by train.

Dundee and Lawlor alone would make a card worthy of the assignment. Dundee is the wonder of the ring. For the past decade he has clashed with all-comers and has met with only a few reverses.

Lawlor Has Won from Dundee and Valger

Lawlor will give Dundee a real test. The Westerner is one of the new ring wonders. He recently was credited with outpointing Dundee in a ten-round match at Savannah. He also has a referee's decision to his credit over Benny Valger, while he scored a knockdown in a contest with Willie Jackson. If the grand old dope counts for anything, Dundee will have to fight a great battle to avoid defeat.

The winner of this match will probably be pitted against Kloby in a tussle to be staged at Lawrence next month. With such a match in view, the rival warriors should give a fine account of themselves.

The twelve-round contest between Harry (Kid) Brown of Philadelphia and Freddy Jacks, British feather-weight champion, should also be filled with thrills.

Jacks has done some good work in New York and Philadelphia rings. He shapes up like a real champion. He is confident he will win over Brown that he has signed to clash with Frankie Burns at Jersey City next Monday night.

Coogan and Moran Are Worthy Rivals

The other twelve-session affair finds Mel Coogan of Newark with Pal Moran of New Orleans as an opponent. Coogan is one of the classiest lightweights in the country. He boxes particularly well at open-air shows. At Detroit a couple of weeks ago he was credited with a victory over Johnny Dundee in a tussle staged at the ball park in that city.

Moran will give Coogan a battle. At New Redford recently the New Orleans youth was given a draw with Frankie (Young) Britt.

PENN LEADS WITH 15 QUALIFIERS

Princeton, With 14, Is Second in Intercollegiate; Dartmouth Places 7 and Harvard 3

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Philadelphia, May 29.—The wildest battle for track honors in the forty-four years of intercollegiate track and field athletics is going full tilt at Franklin Field today, and not until the final event is completed will the winner be known.

In the qualifying rounds Pennsylvania led with fifteen men; Princeton was close up with fourteen; Cornell qualified eleven for the finals; California and Dartmouth seven each; Leland Stanford and Yale six; Penn State five; Harvard, Lafayette, Syracuse and Rutgers three each; Columbia two, and Amherst, Boston College, Brown, Holy Cross, Tech, New York University and Pittsburgh one each.

On the numbers of qualifiers, one would imagine the race for first place would lie between Penn, Princeton and Cornell, but such may not prove the case, for where those three schools will start several secondary men who have only outside chances of landing places, the Stanford, California and Dartmouth men who qualified seem sure of placing and placing very high in their events.

American's Selections Come Through

The trials and preliminary rounds ran remarkably true to the chart published in Thursday's Boston American. Of the fifty-five men named for places, all but ten qualified for today's finals, and but for a couple of mishaps, two withdrawals and an exhibition of woeful judgment, at least five more of those named in Thursday's table would be battling for honors today.

The mishaps came to Kirksey, the brilliant Stanford sprinter, and Gardner, Yale's premier pole vaulter. Kirksey, after winning his century heat in 10s., suffered a leg cramp in his 220-yard heat, and was unable to complete the race; while Gardner suffered a bad jarring in the pole vault, which prevented him from attaining a place with the six finalists. The withdrawals were those of Driscoll of Boston College who, instead of competing in both the 440 and 880-yard events, ran only in the 440, and Muller of California, who did not compete in the high jump.

Leaders Sought Only to Qualify

In every event excellent marks were made despite the fast the leaders sought only to qualify. Both Kirksey and Leconey traveled the century in 10s.; Thompson skimmed the high hurdles in 15 1-5s.; Meehan, Penn's hefty weight thrower, 168 feet; four pole vaulters cleared 12 ft. each, and there was every indication at the start of today's finals that two or more intercollegiate and possibly one world's record will be harassed.

Penn's stock took a boost when Captain Gustafson came out on the track with his injured leg in bandages, and succeeded to lead his team of quarter-milers all around the course until within five yards of the tape. All the western athletes lived up to reports and both Stanford and California are in the running for high honors today.

Present indications are that the leading scoring thirty points will win.

ONE HOUR DELIVERY

BRAVES IN TWO WITH DODGERS

Stallings Men Anxious to Take Both Ends of Double Header

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 29.—The Braves and Dodgers meet today in the first double-header of the season. The Braves after their win yesterday were out to take both games, which will put them ahead of the Brooklyn team in the standing and also up in the first division.

Beating the Dodgers cannot be said to be Dana Fillmurim's easiest trick, as it took him 19th innings to walloo Sherrod Smith and his teammates in Boston on May 3, but when he defeated Ed Pfeffer and the Dodgers, 6 to 5, in the 14th innings, Dana demonstrated that taxing the measure of Brooklyn was one of his most useful tricks.

Fillingim pitched a lot better ball than the score of 6 to 2 and the eight hits by the Dodgers indicates. In the first eight rounds, when the Braves' lead was a paltry 2 to 1, Dana allowed five hits. He may be excused for letting down a trifle after his supporta and himself had bumped Pfeffer in the ninth round for four runs. These developed from a home run by Eddie Eayrs, a double by Maranville and singles by Fillingim and Christenberry.

That the singles by Wheat and Mitchell off Dana in the ninth, which became two runs, with one out, when Pete Kilduff doubled, meant nothing was shown when he retired Elliott on a grounder, and whiffed Bill McCabe.

One of the odd incidents was the taking of a stolen base from Holke in the second inning. He reached first on Johnston's fumble of his hot drive and stole as Boeckel struck out. Umpire Klem said Boeckel had purposely hit at a bad third strike in such crude fashion as to interfere with Elliott's throw, and he ordered Holke back to first.

In the ninth inning Elliott nearly knocked Ineckel's pins off with a savage hit. The blow upset Boeckel and caromed away to short, where it was grabbed by Maranville, who threw out Elliott on what was by far the most sensational play seen here in a long time.

Ed Konetchy was out of the Brooklyn lineup with a broken rib received in the tenth inning of the last game with the Phillies when he knocked Bancroft into a cocked hat in a collision.

YALE TENNIS PLAYERS BEATEN AT LONGWOOD

The Yale tennis team were sent down in defeat by the Longwood Cricket Club players at the Longwood Chestnut Hill courts. The collegians captured one doubles and one singles, while Longwood finished on the long end of five singles and two doubles matches.

MONTREAL-OWENS BOUT POSTPONED

The twelve-round bout between Young Montreal of Providence and Young Owens of Cambridge, which was carded to be decided at the Union Square Club of Somerville Monday night, has been postponed for a week. Montreal suffered an injury to one of his hands in training for more time to prepare for the match.

FITZSIMMONS DEFEATS BOBBY JOSEPHS AT C. A. C.

Billy Fitzsimmons of Chelsea was winner over Bobby Josephs of the South End, in twelve rounds at the Commercial A. C.

Red McNeill won from Young Whiting in five rounds. Honey Mann defeated Young Reardon in two sessions, and Joe O'Connell disposed of Joe Singer in three frames.

All this ought to help a lot to improve acting.

Regarding Geniuses.

Those few innocent remarks I made last week brought me a bunch of protests from musicians and others who believe in the artistic temperament as demonstrated by Renavent in "Genius and the Crowd."

The protestants have been hurled at me of Paderewski walking off the platform because somebody whispered, and Mr. Melba refusing to go on because the tenor had eaten garlic, and so on.

I might retort with Kreisler, standing like Casabianca while the American Legion Band rocks at him, and Mischa Elman who swam a snowdrift across the Lynn marshes to fill a date at Lynn last season of instances of great violinists who set parting fame under and keeping their obligations to their audiences above great odds, but what's the use?

Let us admit that some artists have artistic temperament which makes them act funny, and others have not. The greater the artist as a general thing, the less the temperament.

The Great Plays in Yiddish.

It seems there is a very large public in Boston for a high class Jewish theatre presenting the great plays in Yiddish. Morris Schwartz' company at the Boston Opera House, presenting "Uriel Acosta," Gordin and other famous playwrights has been enjoying remarkable prosperity.

Her Screen Lover.

To have been leading man for Miss Geraldine Farrar, noted American prima donna, during an engagement of six months, would seem to have appeared with her on the stage is the remarkable experience of Wallace Reid, Lasky film star.

When Miss Farrar decided a year ago to perpetuate her art as an actress by appearing before the motion picture camera, she chose as her first play a filmed version of "Carmen." Mr. Reid, then one of the young leading men at the Lasky studio, was selected for the heroic role of Don Jose. Later during the same Summer he appeared in principal support of Miss Farrar in "Maria Rosa."

A Police Director.

Marshall Neilan engaged A. Leslie Martin, late of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, as technical adviser on the production of "The Rivers of Life" for the First National photoplay of the great outdoors, now being shown at Tremont Temple.

Mr Martin's eight years of service with Canada's famous police organization made him especially well qualified for the post he gained with Neilan's staff. He was born in England and fought in the Boer war.

Where C. P. Guessed Wrong.

Doris Keane has many inspirations, neither does she believe in charms, but she always carried around with her a bit of paper nearly frayed, on which is written:

"This is not a good play.—C. F."

The "C. F." in the initial signature of Charles Frohman. It was under the management of Mr. Frohman that Miss Keane played on the stage for a long time, and it was on him that the play, "Romance," by Edward Sheldon, was first submitted. He wrote that comment over the play after he read it and later it came to Miss Keane's attention.

She liked the piece and discussed its possibilities with her managers and Mr. Sheldon. It was produced and it was in that place that she won her greatest success; a success that has lasted from the "first-night" performance and has made her the leading emotional actress of the American stage.

This is the story from which the United Artists' production for the screen has been made and which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Monday for a season it was the stage in New York, then it played two years in Chicago, then a season in motion, and after that it was taken to London, where it played nearly three years.

And all that success on the criticism that "this is not a good play." "One never knows these days," Miss Keane says, "and I keep that slip of paper in my dressing room always. It's my good talisman."

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"Romance" would seem to be the fitting title for the United Artists' latest production in which Miss Doris Keane plays the leading role which comes to the Majestic Theatre Monday. It was written by Edward Sheldon and achieved a brilliant stage success in New York, Chicago, Boston and London during the past successive six years. In it Miss Keane is enabled to give all picture lovers a real treat in her fascinating role of Madam Cavallini, an Italian opera singer, in which part on the stage she won for herself the great reputation of America's greatest emotional actress.

The very structure of the story is a bit of effective romance. An elderly bishop would disinherit his young nephew from an impulsive marriage with an actress and reveals to the astonished youth the long-buried and secret love romance of his—the bishop's—own early life.

He has treasured in hidden souvenire all these long years. There is a faded glove that once covered her dear hand. Now, for his nephew's sake, the bishop breaks the seal of the past. He brings forth those sacred relics of his lost romance. In the glow of the hearth he begins his tale —the firelight flickers—the scene fades—suddenly it is the old bishop no longer, but the handsome young rector of St. Giles again.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

At the head of the Keith bill next week stand the Ford sisters—Mabel and Dora—two of the greatest dancers in vaudeville, in a production which they call "Frolics of 1920."

Grace Huff is next on the bill. She is an actress of rare personality and great dramatic genius. And she has something absolutely new and original in the way of a playlet. It is entitled "Just Like a Man," and is by Frank Craven.

COLONIAL THEATRE

Lou Tellegen and his associate players will be the attraction at the Colonial Theatre, Monday night, in a new comedy by Augustus Thomas, entitled "Underneath the Bough."

Mr. Tellegen needs no introduction to the theatregoers of this city. In appearance he is very much like an Englishman, with all the characteristics of a typical matinee idol. He varies the latter effect, however, by having a great deal of intelligence, while his French naturalness and gaiety of manner, contrasted with his Anglo-Saxon appearance, makes him an original and interesting figure.

He has written many plays and has the distinction of being an actor-manager, as "Under the Bough" is under his own management. The scenes of the play are attractively placed, and the cast supporting Mr. Tellegen is of unusual excellence, including the following well-known favorites, Alma Belwin, Ruano Bogislav, Frances Shannon, Cecilia Radcliffe, Josephine Coll, Edgar Woolley, Ivan Simpson, Mac Barnes, Thomas Walsh, Ralph Locke, Albert Lawrence.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

With farewell speeches by the many popular members of the Somerville Players on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, the many patrons of this theatre will be permitted an opportunity to send forth their good wishes to the players that have been so loyal to them through the season—and they will also be permitted to see next season's new leading lady, Miss Anne Bronaugh, who will play the title role in "Peg o' My Heart"—which will be the final attraction of the season.

PEEK-A-BOO CO.

Overflowing with pretty girls and bubbling with catchy song hits and bright comedy, Joan Bedini's spectacular burlesque, Peek-A-Boo continues another week at the Gayety Never-before has the Gayety Theatre attempted to play the same show for more than one week, but with a show of this calibre, capacity houses should prevail during the entire engagement.

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

Did you ever hang by your teeth? And, while you were in that startling position, did you ever try to do a kit dance or twist yourself into a knot? It's dollars to doughnuts that if you're not circus folks you never did; and as a matter of fact, it isn't every circus performer who can accomplish the latter. It requires a peculiar kind of dexterity, a strength in the muscles and the jaw that are unusual and a daring that is quite oblivious to fear or "nerves."

The Sells-Floto circus offers an aerial ballet as one of its many features. Superficially, this doesn't seem to run much. It is only when the declaration is made that there are a dozen pretty and shapely young women, including Stella Rawlins and the Luckie Sisters, in the display, and that their entire performance is given while swinging by their teeth in the dome of the big canvas amphitheatre that the remarkable character of the exhibition is realized. This was one of the big hits of the Sells-Floto circus during its three weeks' engagement at the Chicago Coliseum in the early Spring.

There are, it is announced, over three hundred performers of cleverness and distinction in the circus company, and many of the acts are described as novel and sensational beyond anything in the scenic line ever offered in this city. The Hilding Hannefords would alone give distinction to any show. There will be a parade at 11 o'clock in the morning to inaugurate circus week next Monday, May 31. Georges Carmentier, the French boxing idol and champion, is announced to appear at all performances.

BARNUM & BAILEY JUNE 14

The first advance agents of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus are in town. The posters and advertising matter will inform the waiting vicinity that the circus comes to town for a week beginning Monday, June 14, at the Huntington avenue circus grounds.

This year's program is promised to surpass all others. In addition to retaining the leading celebrities of the circus arena, which introduced the circus consolidation last year, an amazing array of European novelties have been provided.

Among the femininine stars are been staged than mention of the May Wirth, the champion lady bareback rider of the world; Bird Millman, whose exhibition on the tight wire is the acme of charming grace and dexterous ability, and Lily Leitzel, the magnetic gymnast whose equal has not yet been discovered. The famous Clarkedons, Hooneys, Davenports, Wirth and St. Leon families head the equestrian numbers. Trilby White, who performs giant swings high up in the tent, the Australian seed-sheeping champions and Signor Bagonghi, a tiny Tuscan norseman, together with the Clarkonians and the Allegrist Silbon troupe of aerialists are among the features of the colossus circus.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

"His House in Order," which will be presented by the talented Temple Stock Company at the Malden Auditorium during the coming week, is a product of the fertile pen of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, whose fame as a playwright is known throughout the land. His works have been accorded the enthusiastic approval of the American people, and "His House in Order" is undeniably the best he has yet offered to the public. The play is essentially a comedy drama of the type that bristles with sparkling dialogue and spirited action.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATRE

When "The Flaming Clue," which will be shown on Monday at Loew's Columbia Theatre, was screened, it proved to be a severe test of the histrionic abilities of Harry Morey. The other features will be Gretchen Hoffman in "The She Tiger."

PARK THEATRE

Based on the life of the immortal Joan of Arc, a motion picture production in eleven parts entitled, "Joan the Woman," directed by Cecil B. DeMille, with Geraldine Farrar in the role of Joan, will begin an engagement at the Park Theatre, Monday. This picture was presented at the high prices at the Colonial Theatre a year ago.

There is a certain timeliness about the story of Joan of Arc, and it has been reported frequently from France that public interest in the Maid of Orleans never was so keen as at the present moment. Nothing more strikingly portrays the lavishness with which "Joan the Woman" has been staged than mention of the members of the cast. The hero is played by Wallace Reid, who was Don Jose in Miss Farrar's film production of "Carmen;" Hobart Bosworth as LaHire, Theodore Roberts as Cauchon; Raymond Hatton, as King Charles VII; Tully Marshall, as Loiseleur, and Charles Clary as LaTremoille.

YIDDISH PLAYERS

Ibsen's "Ghosts" will be the offering of Morris Schwartz and his excellent company of Yiddish players at the Boston Opera House tomorrow night.

For next week's repertoire Mr. Schwartz and his company have selected classical dramas of the modern stage well known through their successful performances in the English language.

The repertoire the rest of the week is as follows: Wednesday night, Tolstoi's "Kreutzer Sonata;" Friday night, Daudet's "Sapho;" Saturday matinee, Tolstoi's "Kreutzer Sonata;" Saturday evening, "The Lily," well known through the American production by David Belasco, and Sunday night, "The Dancer."

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE

The attractions for the initial half of the coming week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre will be headed by the Nelson City Four, who will offer something different in harmony and hilarity. They have long been recognized as one of the foremost harmony quartettes and their advent to Boston will be heralded with delight. LeRoy and Mabel Hart will offer a song romance, entitled "Love in the Southland," which has a pleasing sound to the ears of music lovers. Henderson and Halliday, "The Mail Carrier and White Wing" have something different to offer in the line of novelty. Other acts will be Lucy Gillett and Company in "The Girl from Delft"; Helen Miller, "The Saxophone Girl" and a singing and jesting number. Lew Cody in "The Butterfly Man" will be the topline film attraction.

CODMAN SQ. THEATRE

Attractions for the coming week at the Codman Square Theatre will comprise four acts of high class dancing and comedy; also Glaire Brookwell in "The Mother of His Children."

LOEW'S GLOBE THEATRE

The picture for the first half of the week at Loew's Globe Theatre are widely divergent in character—Lew Cody in "The Butterfly Man," and Madeline Traverse in "The Iron Heart." The former is a vivid picture of the life of a male butterfly. The latter picture is, as the title suggests, woven around a heart that was closed to love and its messages of joy, but as is always the case, there comes a time when love will not be refused. For the last half of the week Shirley Mason will be shown in "Love's Harvest," a story of tender appeal.

MODERN AND BEACON

The great dramatic photoplay production, "Neglected Wives," which will be the feature at the Modern and Beacon Theatres on Monday, is a screen version of the play, "Why Women Sin," whose successful run on some of the largest English-speaking stages in the world extended over a period of several years and is well remembered.

The big ballroom scenes, the gambling mansion, the raid and the kidnapping lend an impressiveness and grandeur befitting this big production. There is no all-star cast.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE

"The Bottom of the World," the Sir Ernest Shackleton Antarctic expedition picture, will be seen at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. These pictures were made by Sir Ernest's own camera man and thoroughly cover the expedition from the time it left Buenos Ayres until it returned to Valparaiso two years later.

NORUMBEGA PARK

"Everywoman," the big film production of the famous play of the same name, will be the feature attraction in the big open air theatre at Norumbega Park the first three afternoons and evenings of next week. The last three days the feature picture will be "Even as Eve." Sunday concerts are given in the theatre both afternoon and evening. Music is a big feature of the program and concerts are given by twelve-piece musicians.

"RITZ GIRL" IS TUNEFUL COMEDY

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Before a capacity house "The Poor Little Ritz Girl," a new musical comedy, produced by Lew Fields, was given its first performance on any stage at the Wilbur last night.

Despite a lot of mishaps, due to the inexperience of actors and stagehands with the production, it went over very well; in fact, it has the ear-marks of a hit.

Henry B. Stillman and William J. O'Neil wrote the book, Richard F. Rodgers supplied the music and Lorenz Hart the lyrics.

COMEDY OF STAGE FOLK.

The Ritz Girl is a play about stage folk. Part of the action takes place where a musical piece is being run off and part in an apartment rented to one of the chorus girls by an unscrupulous real estate agent during the owner's absence. This chorus girl is unusually unsophisticated, but she has three chorus girl friends who know the world, and these supply most of the comedy.

By a series of dark changes the producer gets away from the introduction of a whole chorus into an interior set. Thus we have a farce going on in the apartment and the concerted musical numbers when they should be—on the stage of a theatre. But before the end we get a bit tired of the dark changes.

Another clever device enables the audience to hear both sides of a telephone conversation.

MUSIC TUNEFUL.

There are too many musical numbers at present in "Poor Little Ritz Girl," and the action ends naturally fifteen minutes before the producers are willing to admit it.

But these things will doubtless be fixed up by tonight. There is enough good stuff in the show as it is to make it popular.

The music is always spirited and tuneful if it has a distinctly reminiscent flavor.

Victor Morley and Ray Atwell handle the principal male roles. Aileen Poe played the ingenue sweetly enough. Lulu McClennah, Alva Addare and Florence Webber got a lot of fun out of the "hard chorus girl" roles.

ANNUAL CONCERT BY JOE DI PESA & NICK PENFIELD

Announcement is made that the annual concert to be given by Joe Di Pesa and Nick Penfield, members of the publicity staff of the Park Square Theatre, will take place on Monday evening, June 7, at Park Square Theatre.

They have arranged an all star bill of vaudeville and as in the past will offer an excellent program.

YIDDISH STAR, JACOB P. ADLER, IN FAREWELL TOUR

Edwin A. Relkin presents, beginning last evening, the original Yiddish star, Jacob P. Adler and his all-star cast of select players, including his wife, Sara Adler, and Dora Nale as Adler. They will remain in Boston for only five performances.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

Viola Dana in "Dangerous to Men" is announced as the feature attraction at the Gordon's Olympia beginning Monday. This production is from an adaptation by A. P. Younger from H. V. Esmond's stage drama, "Billy Lamb" in the Strand.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA

William S. Hart's beautiful Pinto pony is an outstanding figure in the famous star's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "The Cold Deck," which will be shown at the Scollay Square Olympia beginning Monday.

PARAGON PARK OPENS

Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden opened for the season today under new management. This year this well amusement park of the South Shore is under the management of Albert A. Golden and David Stone, who have made many improvements in this popular caravaserai of the seashore resort.

The biggest cabaret show along the suit e coast is the big attraction at the Palm Garden. Ralph Cozens, managing director of the cabaret, has arranged for a change of program every week, and will present during the entire season up to the middle of September the expanding bill includes the Six Powells,-slack and tight wire artists; the Imperial Senegambian Band, the Petal Trio, Water in a high diving act, Dolan and Dolan in acrobatic stunts, Harbee and Crossen in a novelty act; Arnette Richards, soprano; Rita Murfe in dances; Helena Campbell in a character sketch, and the Lambert Brothers, banjo players.

NANTASKET BOATS

Each summer Frederick L. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, attempts to better the running schedule of the steamers during the early part of the season. This year an exceptionally fine timetable has been put into effect enabling many of the cottage owners to open their summer homes much earlier than usual. It is estimated that nearly fifty per cent. of the summer people have opened their houses. The full fleet of steamers will go into service during the first of June, half hourly trips Saturdays and Sundays and extra late boats every evening.

RELAY HOUSE

Bowles famous black and white jazz band, with its fine vocal and instrumental soloists and its unexcelled dance music, continues to please the hosts of patrons who crowd the Relay House," the inn that made fish famous at Kahoon Hall. Manager Eugene H. Brann is maintaining the high standard of his chicken, steak and fish dinners that have made this Summer eating place famous all over the country.

PEMBERTON INN

Pemberton inn, the dining place de luxe of fashionable South Shore, begins its season today, under the management of George A. Dodge, identified with this home of fine edibles since its establishment. The season will be inaugurated with a special banquet course dinner.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND

In "The Heart of a Child," a special production adapted from Frank Danby's novel of the same name, Nazimova comes to the screen of the Upham's Corner Strand for a three-day run.

PASS FILM BILL BY 12 VOTES

Rep. Sawyer, in Motion to Reject Measure, Calls It Blow at Liberty

The bill to establish a State censor of motion pictures, who will have power to cut out anything which, in his opinion, would be hurtful to the morals of the other 4,000,000 people of the State, finally squeezed through the House of Representatives by the narrow margin of twelve votes.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, a Congregational clergyman, declared that the bill should be rejected. "In order to make a small correction, you would throw aside the great American principle of liberty," he said.

GERMAN RESTRICTION.

"You would start on the German principle of restriction. Our fathers insisted upon a free press and we ought to adhere to that policy."

Representative Keniston of Boston said that censorship will cost the industry only $60,000 and that if the motion picture producers cannot pay that amount they ought to fail.

Representative Abbott of Haverhill said that President Wilson had within a day signed a bill proposed by the motion picture industry to prohibit the transportation of any film of an indecent, lewd or obscene nature and that the national legislation displaces any need which existed for censorship here. He said that he was absolutely opposed to the principle of censorship.

BLOW AT LIBERTY.

"This bill is a direct blow at the American principle of liberty," said Representative George Pearl Webster of Haverhill, the old Progressive party leader. "The censors under this bill would be a political body, subject to all the whims and prejudices and pressure that could be exerted upon it."

The Rev. Mr. Sawyer's motion to reject the bill was itself rejected by the vote of 103 to 91. The bill remains to be enacted in the Senate before it can go to the Governor.

Poirier Will Allowed

The will of Odilon Poirier of Cambridge, who died February 3, has been allowed. Mrs. Marie L. Poirier, his widow, has been appointed executrix. The estate is valued at $13,000.

Saves Irish Veteran from Deportation

By Universal Service.

New York, May 29.—Richard Lacey, aged seventy, an Irishman, whose faith in his old and tattered discharge papers from the army nearly brought him to grief, was probably saved from deportation when his brother, Charles, appeared at Ellis Island and accepted the responsibility for him.

Richard Lacey came to America fifty years ago. He enlisted and fought in the Indian campaigns that followed the Civil War. After serving five years, he returned to his home in Old Castle, County Meath, Ireland. His stories of American life caused his brother to come here.

The two lost track of one another.

The recurrence of turbulent days in Ireland caused Richard to wish to come to America again. He got sail without obtaining a passport, confident that his army discharge papers would prove an open sesame. He was mistaken, however, and was about to be returned when his brother appeared.

ACTOR CONVICTED OF BEATING DAUGHTER

By Universal Service.

New York, May 29.—John Gallagher, who as Gallandro, a clay modeler, has long had a standing act in vaudeville, was found guilty of assault in the third degree by a jury in Brooklyn. It was testified he had his daughter, Minnie, nineteen, with a stick with protruding nails. He was remanded to jail to await sentence.

CALL ON SCHOOLBOYS TO AID IN FARM WORK

Springfield, May 29.—Fearing that the labor shortage in this section of the State may result in a famine in produce this Fall, the Hampden County League has appealed to the schoolboys and to 2,000 United States Armory workers who will be laid off July 1 to work in the gardens during the Summer.

SOVIET ENVOY SEEKS PEACE WITH ENGLAND

London, May 29.—The Evening Standard stated that it has learned that Gregory Krassin, the Bolshevik trade envoy who arrived in London, is empowered by the Moscow Soviet to negotiate peace.

EXTEND ITALIAN FUND DRIVE

Campaign to Establish Home for Children Will Not Close Until June 5

Determined to bring the fund up to the desired goal, the committee in charge of the $100,000 drive for the establishment of a home for Italian children, have decided to extend the allotted time one week, bringing the drive to a close on Saturday evening, June 5th, which day has been designated as Tag Day for Boston.

The Boston Jesters, comprising a list of prominent theatrical, vaudeville, motion picture, newspaper and publicity men, have contributed $100 to the fund.

More than three hundred beautiful Italian girls will make an effort to tag the public in the aid of this worthy cause. They will be stationed in the downtown sections and at the various subway and L stations.

On Tuesday a lawn fete will be given at the Piscopo estate, No. 254 Main street, Winthrop, and the proceeds will be donated to the fund. There will be dancing, concert, bazaar, supper and other activities. The bazaar will be under the direction of the Chatterbox and Mazzini Associations.

A list of the latest contributions follows:

Acknowledged to date, $16,654.68: Tom Wilson Lee, $100. Entertainment concert by Elliot School pupils, Revere, $106.55; Revere Lodge No. 1171, B. P. O. E., $100; Boston Juvenile Court, $52.75; Austin Rose, $50; Eutrio in Revere, $25; Revere Women's Relief Corps, $25; Gianni, $25; aggregate $25 from Revere Republican Committee, Mrs. Walsh, $50; Paul Revere School, Revere, $7; Botanical Gardens, $5; Domenico Musto, $5.

To Teach Avoidance of Church Rows

How to size up your congregation will be part of the instruction to be given this Summer to rural ministers at the Boston University School of Religious Education under the charge of Professor George A. Coe.

In this course, the country minister will be taught how to assume leadership and some points on mental diagnosis which will give hints how to avoid church rows and what mental discipline should be used before committing oneself to any drastic methods.

THE YOUNG DIANA

Story of Tense Mystery in Which Heroine Holds Key to Youth

By Marie Corelli

THE startled captain moistened his dry lips with his tongue and tried to speak.

"Your handwriting?" he stammered—"I—I thought it very like the handwriting of—of another Diana May I used to know—"

"Yes—another Diana May," she said, bending her grave clear eyes upon him—"A Diana May whose life you ruthlessly spoiled—whose trust in men and things you murdered—and why! Because you met a woman with more money, who was younger than I—I, who had aged through waiting patiently for you, as you had asked me to do—because you thought that by the time you returned from India I should be what Society calls passed! And for such callous and selfish considerations as these you deliberately sacrificed my happiness! But I have been given a strange and unexpected vengeance!—look at your wife and look at me!—which now is the younger of the two?"

He moved uneasily—there was something in her aspect that stabbed him as though with physical force and pain.

"You—you must certainly know you are talking nonsense!" he said at last, trying to pull himself together. "Youre is the neo-rest crase I ever heard of! Here you are, a beautiful girl in the very dawn of womanhood, pretending to be a middle-aged spinster who was accidentally drowned just year off the coast of Devon! I don't know how you've come by the same name as here—or why your handwriting should resemble hers—it's mere coincidence, no doubt—but that you should actually declare yourself as one and the same identity with hers, is positively ridiculous! I don't deny that you seem to have got hold of the other Diana May's story—I was engaged to her, that's true—but I used to be away in India longer than was at first intended—seven years nearly. And seven years is a long time to keep faith with a woman who doesn't grow younger—"

A Long Time

"Doesn't grow younger—yes—I see!" echoed Diana, with an enigmatical smile. "And seven years is a long time for a woman to keep faith with a man under the same circumstances. You have not grown younger!"

He reddened. His personal vanity was as "an officer and a gentleman" was far greater than that of any woman-kind.

"If we live, we are bound to grow older—" he said.

"Sometimes," acquiesced Diana, plaintively. "It is not always necessary, in any case, for example—"

Looking at the fair and youthful outline of her features, the sense of extreme incongruity between what she actually was and what she resolutely avowed herself to be touched his innermost sense of humor and he laughed outright.

"It is course you are playing!" he said. "Playing with yourself and me! You must be one of those psychists who imagine they are re-embodied spirits of the past—but I don't mind if that sort of thing amuses you. Only I wonder you don't imagine yourself to be the reincarnation of some fairy princess—or even the Diana goddess of the moon, rather than an ordinary spinster of the British middle class, who, in these days, was nothing more than the usual type of pretty English girl."

"To whom you wrote a good deal of 'stuff' in your time," said Diana, composedly, "which she was fool enough to believe. Do you remember this letter?"

From a quaint blue velvet bag at her side by a silver chain she drew a folded paper and handed it to him.

With eyes that grew hot and dim with giddy perplexity, he read his own words:

"How I love you, my own sweet one! You are to me the most adorable girl in the world, and never I do an unkind thing to you or their wrong you in any way may God punish me for a treacherous brute! My one desire in life is to make you happy—"

His hand—the massive veined hand of a man accustomed to "do himself well," trembled, and the paper shook between his fingers.

"Where did you get this?" he asked, unsteadily—"it — it was written quite a long time ago!"

"You sent it to me," replied Diana. "I returned all your other letters, but I kept that one—and this."

Another note was drawn daintily out from the blue velvet bag, and she handed it to him with a smile.

Again his burning eyes travelled along his own familiar scrawl:

"I am quite sure you will understand that time has naturally worked changes in you as well as in myself, and I am obliged to confess that the feelings I had for you no longer exist. But you are a sensible woman, and you are old enough now to realize that we are better apart."

He lifted his head and tried to look at her. She met his shifting gaze with a clear and level splendor of regard that pierced his very soul with a subconscious sense of humiliation and conviction. Yet it was not possible for him to believe her story—the whole suggestion was too fantastic and incredible. He gave her back the letters. She took them from his hand.

"Well?" she said, tentatively.

"Well!" he rejoined—then forced a difficult smile—"I wrote these things, certainly, but how you came by them I don't know. Though, after all, you might easily have met the other Diana May, and she might have given you her confidence—"

Caught Her Hands

"And her lover's letters to keep?" said Diana, contemptuously. "So like her! Reginald Cleeve, you said just now that I was playing—playing with you and with myself. Believe me, I never was further from 'play' in my life! I'm in deadly earnest! I want—" She paused and laughed, then added: "I only want what I can have for the asking—you!"

He sprang up from his chair and came nearer to her, his face aglow with ardor. She motioned him back.

"Not yet!" she said, and the seductive beauty of her face and form smote him as with a blow of steel. "It isn't love at first sight, you know, like that of Romeo and Juliet! We are old lovers! And you—you are married!"

"What does that matter?" he said, defiantly. "No man considers himself bound nowadays by the matrimonial tie!"

"No?" she queried, sweetly. "I'm so glad to know that! It makes me doubly thankful that I never married you!"

He made a closer step to her side and caught both her hands in his.

"Do you still persist," he said, "in your idea that you are the old Diana?—the woman I was engaged to?—you, a mere girl?"

She smiled most entrancingly up into the feverish eyes that searched her face.

"I still persist!" she answered. "I have always loved telling the truth, no matter how unpleasant! I am the 'old' Diana to whom you were engaged, and whom you heartlessly 'threw over'—her, and no other!—and 'old' as ever in years though not in looks!"

His grasp of her tightened.

"Then in Heaven's name, have your own way, you beautiful crazed feature!" he said, passionately—"If that is your obsession or fancy, it's true! Your daughters are certainly very plain—but you must not go by outward appearances!"

"Why?" I asked, and then added eagerly, "Now it's all clear sailing for Jimmie. That's why you want to lunch with him, isn't it? He will be happy."

"Will he?" asked Neal.

His tone chilled my enthusiasm. I studied his face studiously.

"The old Harrison place," stammered Neal abruptly. "The old home where I think Jim had once hoped to see Phoebe married—is listed in—is down with title clear and plain, Stabele, the old Harrison place is Virginia Dalton's property."

"Virginia!" I cried. "Virginia—but how?"

"I don't know," said Neal. "But I think I see. That's why I told you I might have to talk to Pat."

"This sure is one pleasant old-home week, Anne. I don't cotton to many women, and they're too panicky to translate me into their staccato measure. But you're a regular fellow," said Carlotta, flashing a smile at me, as she leaned back against the cushioned bench of our corner table and stared around the restaurant.

Lazily and insolently, as she had looked over the people in the dining room, she now removed her shiny black sailor and fluffed her red hair. She was the only woman in the place to take off her hat, but that didn't bother her at all.

"It is nice to be together," I said cordially—adding as the waiter approached, "You do the ordering, Carlotta, I like the way you select a meal."

That left me free to marshall my thoughts. From the moment Neal told me that the old Harrison place stood in Virginia's name, I had known there was something I must do this very day. Neal's half-expressed suspicion wasn't needed. Given the one fact that the old homestead had been deeded to Virginia, there was only one conclusion to draw. She hadn't bought the place. Not without consulting Jim. That would have been a bit too thick even for Virginia, always supposing she had the money for such a purchase.

But she hadn't the money. I was sure of that. The old homestead wasn't an investment of Virginia's. It was a gift. And from Pat. No one had to tell me that. I knew.

What I didn't know was the—why should Pat buy the old estate and give it to Virginia.

Was it an unsafe conscience that drove him to do this? Was this his way of paying off every possible stiver of his debt to Virginia and purchasing his freedom from Jim for what? I hated to hand out my thoughts, but I had to.

Pat and Carlotta went everywhere together. Through her Pat had formed his very advantageous alliance with the Sturgis Construction Company. And only thisnoon Carlotta had made it evident that if she phoned Pat he'd come t her lidding to lunch with us.

A Gift from Pat

Everything pointed one way. Pat, generous and romantic rishman that he is, wanted to the right thing by Virginia—would be compelled by his own nature to do the right thing before leavin her —before leaving her for Carlita.

As my thoughts raced along and jerked shamefacedly to this point, Carlotta broke in on them:

"Here come the clams. Hope they'll act as a bracer. Anne, I've been studying you out of th corner of my eye while you wer daydreaming. And you look, bit done-in. Got any troubles?"

"A few" I replied lightly. "Who hasn't?"

"Sometimes I wonder what laying for me," she laughed. "Beause I haven't a trouble in the world. And it doesn't seam fair. So suspect I'll get mine, and get it good and plenty, when the landslide starts."

"You haven't a single trouve?" I repeated, feeling my way toward my opening. "Life just han you everything you want, Carlot?"

"It gave me a good flying start toward all I want," she repld, almost humbly. "I've got a lalthy body that never annoys e by creaking or yelling for help And then I had the blind luck to t born into luxurious surroundings ad to take an interest in the thing that appeal to my folks. And m folks are too few and too busy to other me. Now, I ask you, what fk do you think it's up to me to regter?"

"Why, the way you put sings, you certainly are fortune," I gasped. But Carlotta sweptn:

"Of course my old dad has few legitimate complaints. He wanted a son, and fished three daughters out of the stork pond. Susanne is a gay widow over in Paree and Luella's stuck up in Canada living the life of her mining-engineer husband. Dad's got only me. And I do my best to be a son to him."

Carlotta's Defence.

Carlotta laughed, a little uneasily, it seemed. As she paused for breath I seized my moment:

"I'll wager you'd never consciously do anything to hurt your father, Carlotta. Or any one else, for that matter. I can't imagine you deliberately causing suffering."

"I wouldn't." Carlotta shook her head in vigorous denial.

"But don't you see there's a possibility that in trying to be a son to your father you twist your viewpoint a bit—warp it from its moorings? You're a girl, you know, and a very feminine one at heart. And isn't it a bit dangerous to add a sort of outer coating of boy?"

"Honey, are you telling me that you don't like my sailor hats and plaids?" demanded Carlotta. "If you could see how foolish I look in ruffled dimities, you wouldn't say a word. I turn into a big, hoopy woman, trying to play lady. I've tried the other clothes and I know. And I do so love shiny things and bright colors. Don't tell me you're going to start clothes—reforming me," ended the girl almost wistfully.

"No, but if I did, I think you'd listen, wouldn't you. Carlotta? We're good enough friends for that—"

"We're good enough friends—for anything—I hope. You're my only woman friend, Anne."

"Then," I said, ignoring my thumping heart and the lump in my throat, "we're good enough friends to talk about another friendship of yours—one with a man—a friendship that may cost too dearly."

How to Gain Flesh

A simple but sure way to increase the weight, it is asserted by several well-known physicians, is to take regularly for several months one or two 5-grain hypo-sulfates tablets after each meal. These little tablets have the distinguished merit of increasing the red and white blood corpuscles, aiding digestion and promoting assimilation and absorption of the elements in the food which go to make blood and solid tissues. They are obtainable in sealed packages from any up-to-date apothecary shops.—Advertisement.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

SHE flung a fat package on the desk as she spoke. Neal seized it eagerly, and Carlotta, motioning him to his chair, cleared a corner of his desk and flung herself upon it, to perch there nonchalantly. At once Neal fell to studying his papers. Charlotta turned to me, saying in a stage whisper:

"Get a luncheon date with brother or hubby or any one?"

"Not with me," said Neal, looking up with a grin. "Nor yet with Jim. We're an engagement of our own and very important matters not for mere femininity to hear will there be discussed. So Rabbit's as free as air. I was wondering how I'd find her a partner so she wouldn't be mad at me for my lack of attention. I'd thought of Pat—but here's a partner provided by Fate."

A Secret Revealed.

"Pat can meet us, if you like," said Carlotta, with what struck me as a completely proprietary air. "Shall I 'phone him?"

Again Neal looked up with his grin changed to a frown of perplexity.

"You—better not," he said. "You two girls go it alone."

"All right," said Carlotta amiably. "I'm thrilled to death to have a visit with Anne. We don't seem to have many get-togethers these days. I'll run out to my flat and look over the mail and you blow for me when you're ready, Anne."

The moment she left the office Neal looked up anxiously. Coming very close he stooped and said in a low voice.

"Anne, you remember Jim's dream of buying back the old Harrison place and my difficulty in finding out anything about it? Well, I've a full list of—particulars now. Guess why I had so much trouble in running down the present owner?"

"Why?" I asked, and then added eagerly, "Now it's all clear sailing for Jimmie. That's why you want to lunch with him, isn't it? He will be happy."

"Will he?" asked Neal.

A PERFECT LADY, how shalt thou KNOW one?

For lo, no longer do a fur coat and a solitaire make a "lady," nor three motor cars a "gentleman."

Verily, verily, thou shalt know a Lady by her gingham frock—and by the fact that she looketh like a "lady" IN IT!

Thou shalt know her by her "overalls," wherein she seemeth her house and planteth her garden with her OWN hands.

Thou shalt know her by the patches on her shoes, by her mended gloves, and by the scars of cookstove upon her fingers.

Thou shalt descry her in the marketplace, where she seeketh for the "cheaper cuts"; thou shalt spot her in the tabernacle by her last year's hat; thou shalt detect her in the tea room by her home-made manicure and her modest "tip."

But, most of all, shalt thou know her by her exultations and her boastings, when she praiseth her own frugality, and bragseth of her thrift, saying:

"Economy is my motto. I shall NOT spend!

"Behold, I have parted from my maids, and am doing mine OWN cooking, and it is exceeding good!

"Of an Irish stew I have become a past-mistress; from yesterday's pork chops, I have learned to make pate-de-fois-gras, and from left-over veal to fashion chicken-a-la-king!

"I have pressed mine husband's coat with mine own hands, and have mended the pockets thereof, that his small change may not fall out.

"Three times have I made OVER this frock; and this hat which thou admirest hath seen as many seasons as a passee belle.

"Surely, surely, I am modish!

"For ECONOMY is the height of fashion, and frugality is "refined."

"And only the Vulgar are extravagant!"

Go to, my Daughter!

How shalt thou distinguish a lady from her cook?

Even by the all-silk rustle of the cook—and by the cotton hose of the lady!

By the haughtiness of the handmaiden—and by the industry of the mistress!

For the honest laborer and his spouse may ride in limousines and laugh at the high cost of "living."

But the wife of a poor-but-worthy college professor must walk—and save gasolines!

And a lady is known by the scraps she saves!

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Lyman

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate.

LYMAN

VARIATIONS—Leeman, Lynam, Lemon, Lemmon.

RACIAL ORIGIN — Anglo-Saxon.

SOURCE—Descriptive, occupational, official.

THERE are family names which originated in given names, those which originated in nicknames, in descriptions of personal appearance, in trades and occupations, in personal abilities, in praise, in derision, in tribal and clan names, in nationality, in the name of the place where the family originally resided, and in the official position of the founder of the family.

Lyman is a name which falls in the last-mentioned class. There probably were hundreds of unrelated families which adopted this name in the early Middle Ages by the same process of conscious and unconscious selection.

In ancient England, before the Norman French invaded the land and buried the old democracy of the Anglo-Saxons under the machinery of their feudal system, communities governed themselves in much the same fashion as we do today in the United States, by vote; though their organization was much simpler than ours, since populations were smaller.

The Witangemot was a sort of legislature and election rolled into one. In other words, all the voters met at certain periods and decided directly on such laws and action as the community needed.

Only "freemen" were allowed to vote. The Anglo-Saxons called them "leg men," the word "leg" having reference to "laws" (whence the word "legal"), and not to any portions of the anatomies of those who bore the title. The name Lyman, with its variations, as well as the word "layman," is simply a development of the old Anglo-Saxon title for freeman or qualified voter and citizen, a condition not so easily achieved then as now, as it indicates that in the ancient days the family was noted probably for its record in freemen.

Tuesday—Bethell.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax.

Wants to Go to Theatre

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty and considered good looking. I have been going about with a man for several years. Now he very seldom takes me to any place of amusement, which consequently causes remarks among my friends. I don't think he is stingy, but it is just that he doesn't think that far. I have been told that he must be ashamed of me, and have been advised to give him up. I love him dearly and don't know what to do.

JUNE.

POSSIBLY your friend can't afford to take you out very often. Possibly he enjoys merely being with you, talking and enjoying the friendly visit, which "furnishes its own cabaret" and doesn't have to go running about in search of amusement as we city folks too often do.

Try to Be Natural

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and ordinarily attractive. Often going down to business I meet some one, and my difficulty is this: I never know what to say to keep up a interesting and intelligent conversation. Miss Fairfax, I am a great lover of books and have had a high school education. Please give me a little advice.

A. READER.

DON'T work so hard to keep up a conversation. Empty chatter is never interesting. Let the other party do his share of the talking. And rest assured that in being a good listener or in drawing out the men or women in your company you happen to be to talk of his or her interests, you are often likely to make a better impression than if you exerted yourself to talk away, whether or no you have anything to say.

No Success With Boys

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a few boy friends and girl friends. I agree with the book that I have to bother how well I act, and no matter how friendly, they always care for the other girls better.

I am not bad looking, but I am pretty stout. Please tell me how I can get their attention. I cannot be vulgar, like some of the girls are. So please tell me how to act and what to do.

ANXIOUS.

IF you feel you are too stout to be attractive get a book called "Eat and Grow Thin." It may be at the public libraries, and it will be found to contain much valuable advice.

Don't try too hard to be attractive; that always creates amusement, and it is fatal to a girl. Why not try to make some new friends.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

Thousands of Children Suffer From Worms and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of worms are: Constipation, sour stomach, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pain about the navel, pale face or sunken tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on the tongue, starting during sleep, and fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 562 Asylum street, Flint, Mich., used Dr. True's Elixir for her little baby girl when she was sick. Mrs. Roberts wrote to Dr. F. True & Co.: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and I think it was your medicine (Dr. True's Elixir) that helped her." If your child is ill start giving Dr. True's Elixir at once. Buy Dr. True's Elixir at your dealer's at once. Three sizes.

A Too-Friendly Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have known a girl for the past year and am very much in love with her. In the office where she works she permits several, or I might say all of the young men to put their arms around her, Now as I have been an eye-witness of this, I would like to know if you think it is proper? She claims that she means nothing by it and that any girl would do the same thing, but I think it is not proper by any means. H. H. B.

I AGREE with you that the young lady's behavior is most undignified and improper. Perhaps you can persuade her to reform. I hope so, at any rate.

KATHLEEN and CAROLINE

Two Members of a Happy, Healthy Family

When Mr. William Martin of 4704 Reinhart St., W. Phila., Pa., sent in these pictures of his two little girls, Kathleen and Caroline, he said, "I have been using Father John's Medicine for my family for six years and have found excellent results with my five children. I have also used it when getting run down pneumonia myself and have found that it is doing me much good in body-building. Kathleen and Caroline were in very poor health, but since they have been taking Father John's Medicine they are fat, plump and healthy."

The basis of Father John's Medicine is a good substance regularly used by doctors when new flesh and strength is needed. This food element is contained in Father John's Medicine in a form which is most easily taken up by a weakened system and quickly turned into new strength. It is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

Stocks Quiet in New York; Rally in the Second Hour; Rails Are Strong

ADVANCES FOR TIRE ISSUES

Steels and Motors Recover, While Oils Are a Weak Group

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York, but the market finished with a good tone. It was weak at the end of the first hour, but recovered in the second when highest prices for the session prevailed. Rails were a strong group, steels and motors recovered, but oils lagged. Trading became more active late in the morning. Tire issues advanced, their gains ranging from fractions to three points.

Among strongest stocks at the close were Goodrich, Kerrison, Central Leather, Woolen, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Crucible, Utah Copper, Lackawanna Steel, and Retail Stores. Corn Products was off more than a point near the close but other dealings were fractional. U. S. Steel was showing a small loss most of the time.

HAD AN IRREGULAR START.

The initial price movement was irregular, but the tendency was downward, and within a few minutes a majority of stocks were showing small losses. Many opened unchanged. Crucible with a 5-point gain was the largest opening gain, but within half an hour American Beech Magneto was up more than 6 points. It lost most of the gain before midmorning, oils and motors had a narrow range. This was the case with rails also, but they had a firm tone. The market was dull and largely devoted themselves to the readjustments customary before a holiday closing of the exchange. Sentiment was better than for some time. The amount of time money now available accounted in a great measure for this. It is believed that the crisis period is passing and that the technical position of the market warrants faith in an upward movement soon. That it will be a long sustained one is debatable.

SPECULATION WAS LIVELESS.

The market has seldom been more lifeless than it was during the first hour today. Every few minutes it came about to a standstill. Many brokers had gone out of town and attendance at commission houses was small. Business overnight by wire was negligible. Public participation at present is inconsequential and business in the financial district was contributed to by the absence of many cotton, sugar and coffee brokers. The exchanges where they transact business were closed. Some stock brokers are complained because the governing committee had not granted the petition to close their bourse, too.

Massachusetts Lighting Sales

For April this year the gas and electric light companies owned by the Massachusetts Lighting Companies report aggregate net sales, excluding inter-company sales of gas and electricity, amounting to $1?2,353.95, as compared with $144,259.16 for April, 1919 and a decrease of $27,905.89. For the ten months ending April 30, 1920, the net sales were $1,?12,847.?1, as compared with $1,540,596.38 for the corresponding preceding period, an increase of $172,151.33.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Market Very Quiet During the Forenoon; Eastern Manufacturing a Feature

At the opening on the Boston exchange fluctuations were few and small but the tone was firm. Most of the active stocks selling a little higher. After early trades were concentrated there was not much business done and the privy movement was irregular, the tone seemed a bit cheavy, although not enough went on to make it easy to differentiate. Among comparatively active stocks were Simms Magneto, Big Bear and Eastern Manufacturing. Regarding the last named corporation, its earnings for the year to date have exceeded $5.50 a share on common. Massachusetts has made the largest gain. Although most New England companies are banking money still, it is estimated that there are 20,000 factory hands in this section temporarily out of work. Operations have been suspended by about a dozen concerns. Woolen and shoe manufacturing are the only ones giving every opportunity to cut production.

During the morning Massachusetts has advanced three points and Woolen preferred and Boston and Albany one point or more higher. Fractional gains were made by Caulmet & Arizona, New Haven, and Shoe, Eastern Manufacturing and Amoskeag.

St. Mary's Land receded three points while Swift & Co. and Utah Metal sustained by North Butte, East Butte, Ventura, Carson Hill and Libby.

DIVIDEND DECLARATIONS.

Eastern Manufacturing directors have declared a regular dividend of 50 cents a share and an extra dividend of 50 cents, payable July 1 to stock of record June 20.

Libby, McNeil & Libby profits available for dividends on the common stock are reported to be $2,707,899, or the equivalent of $2.11 a share, on the 1,280,000 shares outstanding. The corporation now has a surplus of $5,253,?33. The directors have declared a dividend of the issue of 1,?40,000 new shares and they will have the right to subscribe for 560,000 at $19 a share and will issue one share for each two now owned.

Utah Metal & Tunnel Company has admitted to trading 30,953 additional common shares, making total issue 1,000,000 shares, par $10, making total amount listed 1,?00,000 shares for the list $?00,?53.

The Arkansas Mining & Milling Corporation has been formed, having called and deposited with the Fidelity Trust Company of Boston $1,?00,000 of its outstanding first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, dated January 1, 1911, and due January 1, 1928. The $?00,000 of bonds not called for the first call will remain outstanding in the hands of the Fidelity Trust Company for 30 days from May 15, 1920, at which time the additional Union Bank Building are ready for occupancy.

Orders now on Mullins Body banks exceed $?,?00,000 and production for the year will probably exceed 20,000 cars, an increase on its stock the company expects to show better than $12 for the balance of the year.

GASOLINE CONSUMPTION MUST BE REDUCED SOON

Although a prominent refiner says there is no shortage of gasoline at present and that curtailment of the use of this fuel will not be necessary, Director Sloan of the Bureau of the United States Geological Survey says so much is being consumed that Mexican oil has become a necessity for this country, and it must soon consider the priority question. He says: "With an estimated 7,000,000,000 barrels in the ground and the 1920 consumption rate of 600,000,000 barrels, half-billion barrels, this rapid pace cannot long be maintained.

"Regard for the future forces us both to plan to use less oil and to import more, and it follows that some restriction in gasoline consumption must soon come."

DEMAND FOR PIG IRON STRONG IN EUROPE

While domestic demand for pig iron is said to be moderate, most American consumers seeking at present have enough to meet requirements, reconstruction work in Europe has expanded overseas requirements. The recent market feature was the booking of 10,000 tons for Holland, Sweden and Germany. Most of this iron is probably destined for Germany.

Production costs are sufficient to keep the price firm and increases are expected when equipment and other plants begin to fill railroad orders.

Approve of Refunding Plan

It is stated that bond and noteholders are showing approval of the proposal to exchange the $?,?00,000 bonds and notes of the Fitchburg, Concord & Montreal and Boston & Lowell Railroads for $?,?00,000 bonds thereof in 50 per cent. face value of new per cent. ten-year bonds and 50 per cent. in cash. It is said that few owners have made any opposition. Leaders will undertake that the large savings banks in Massachusetts have agreed to the plan, and that big insurance companies are accepting it.

Stock of Meats and Lard

On May 1 this year cold storage stocks of meats and lard in this country totalled 1,444,852,?58 pounds, a decrease of 86,?48,?52 pounds in a year.

Quiet Print Cloth Market

The print cloth market is quiet in fact, with 64x64 cloths being offered totalling about 12,000,000 yards. Prices are firm.

Town and City Loans

Quincy, Mass., awarded temporary loan of $?50,000, maturing December 1, 1920, to First National Bank at 6.20 per cent. discount.

Brookline, Mass., awarded $?00,000 temporary funding bonds at 96.?8 to the Brookline Trust Company, having a basis of 6.?0 per cent. to M. R. Grant & Company. The bonds mature December 1, 1920, and are dated May 1, 1920.

North Adams, Mass., awarded temporary loan of $?50,000, maturing November 1, 1920, to First National Bank at 6.?0 per cent. discount.

Weymouth, Mass., awarded temporary loan of $?50,000, maturing November 1, 1920, to Weymouth Trust Company at 6 per cent.

Corporation Earnings

For 1919 the Penn Seaboard Steel Corporation reports net profits of $?,?19,877, which equal to $2.?? a share after allowing $1,?50,000 for Federal taxes, leaving a balance of $2,?07,?00 out of which dividends of $1 a share were paid. The surplus for the year was $?,?27,?00. The total surplus May 1 was $?,?52,?23.

The Pacific Gas & Electric Company reports income decreased $653,185, while the shrinkage from Jan. 1 to May 1 was $?,?05,?76.

From March 1 to the end of the third week in May gross for the Southern Railway increased $4,?80,??1.

WALL STREET GETS BIG SUPPLY OF TIME MONEY

By BROADAN WALL.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

New York, May 29 — Testimony brought out before the Interstate Commerce Commission showing that the railroads are absurdly undercapitalized gave the stock market another move yesterday to higher levels. This movement found the leaders willing to co-operate. The pools were already loaded but willingly took more stock.

Railroad shares, coppers, tobaccos and some of the steels were aggressively strong. The oils were steady but they have had a sharp rise recently and were due for a reaction.

Under the circumstances, Large sums made their appearance in the time market.

There is no longer any doubt that the railroad congestion is being relieved rapidly. This is clearing the credit situation.

The statement regarding the railroads is practically true of every other business enterprise of the country last year. People have been talking about a panic to come. The panic in the stock market has occurred and is being followed by one in trade. But far under their asset value, but just as serious as a panic is the lack of available than assets, and sentiment is improving rapidly.

The merger of the Wheeling Steel & Iron Works, La Belle Iron Co. and Whittaker-Glessner Co. into a $?1?0,000,000 corporation is not the latest merger that Wall Street has been talking about to much of late. The other is yet to come and is expected to come promptly. It is said that taking stock dividends is not passed.

But when the crisis is officially ended and there was good buying again of Consolidated Textile

Drastic Drop in Silk Price

When the Japanese Silk Exchange at Yokohama was closed on May 24 because of the Mogi Bank suspension, silk was quoted at 1,?10 yen a bale, but when the exchange reopened on May 27 the price was at the new low of 1,?00 yn. As its highest silk had brought 2,000 yen a bale.

Must Restore Rail Service to Cut Cost of Living

Reduction of commodity prices continues to be the main thing discussed and considered, not only by people in general but by business men and financiers. What curtailment is possible under existing conditions is being debated high and low all over this country. Leaders in trade and finance as a rule are of the opinion that basic conditions must be altered before adequate corrections are possible. Recently belief has spread that the failure to expand transportation facilities sufficiently to provide for national growth and all the commercial, industrial and other development which must result from an increase in population is largely responsible for present economic evils.

Rails Offer Route Back to a Normal Basis

Now that a tendency toward lower prices for clothing seems to be established, and the processes inaugurated by the banks for a contraction of credit have begun to operate, the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says, in a special communication to the Boston American, that a question has naturally arisen as to the future course of food prices. This bank says:

Millions of consumers to whom reduced prices for clothing had little significance so long as food remained excessively high want to know what the chances are for a general lowering of the high cost of living. It is generally a reel that clothing prices dropped primarily because of a shortage of buying and the stringent credit situation.

But it is obvious that some other remedy must be found before to work with credit contraction for a return to normal basis. What will eventually be recognized as this much sought remedy is indicated by the sudden drop in the wholesale prices of fruits and vegetables which followed early this week the slight easement in the traffic situation brought about by the measures taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Even a few days' exercise of that freedom with equipment which the transportation act reserves to the commission, and then only in an emergency, was sufficient to send large supplies of perishable foods to the distributing centers. What the effect would be is such measures were continuously possible may easily be foreseen, but such measures are not possible for any considerable period, not even to the Interstate Commerce Commission and for the very pertinent reason that there would not be sufficient equipment to manipulate if all the traffic were moved simultaneously, as it would be under ordinary circumstances.

The situation with respect to locomotives and cars and tracks is similar to that paralleled by the situation which obtains in the money market when prices are high and the currency in actual numbers are taking place. Under those circumstances more currency than in the form of bank checks is required. So when there is a greater deal of traffic to be moved there must be more equipment in railway equipment. Money is the medium of exchange, a mean as of reckoning costs and balancing accounts, but railroad locomotives and cars are the instruments by which exchanges of goods themselves are effected and without which a flexible currency is useless. They are the absolutely necessary means of giving what the economists call "place utility" to agricultural and industrial products in every large country.

In this country we have come to the point where that free interchange of goods which makes for lower prices is no longer possible because of the lack of railroad equipment, and certainly there will be no general lowering of the cost of living until that condition is corrected. Increasing alone this shortage of equipment would be more than sufficient to keep up prices, but the lack of collateral effects which tend to keep production down at the very time when a scarcity exists. From every large city in the country come reports of increasing idleness because industrial plants are unable to obtain fuel and raw materials. There is not only present under-production, but also disorganization of plant forces and consequent increased costs of starting again. Remembering in connection with this condition the fact that prices fall less rapidly than they rise, we have a fair indication of the importance of railway equipment to national prosperity and contentment.

Present Conditions Not Depression Signs

In reviewing the business situation and describing readjustments which have caused many disturbing economic currents which have been operating so long beneath the surface, there are plainly breaking through, Frederic H. Curtiss, chairman and Federal Reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, says that such conditions have never been just now. People have been talking about a panic to come. The panic in the stock market has occurred and is being followed by one in trade. But far under their asset value, but just as serious as a panic is the lack of available than assets, and sentiment is improving rapidly.

The merger of the Wheeling Steel & Iron Works, La Belle Iron Co. and Whittaker-Glessner Co. into a $?1?0,000,000 corporation is not the latest merger that Wall Street has been talking about to much of late. The other is yet to come and is expected to come promptly. It is said that taking stock dividends is not passed.

MEMORIAL DAY

—BY—

Maj.-Gen. C. R. Edwards, U. S. A.

On Memorial Day, we of the army honor the memory of our comrades who have gone before; we trace the line of affectionate remembrance from Bunker Hill to Santiago and across the ocean to Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne—to the graves of our brothers who fought and died in defence of American ideals and traditions.

And we take a solemn pride in our comradeship of arms with those heroic dead who laid down their lives to establish and preserve this nation and to vindicate its principles.

Blame Republican Party if Postal Pay Is Not Raised

When a situation of great injustice arises and is prolonged by the failure of the people's representatives to act, it is always desirable to fix the responsibility.

For nearly fifteen months the Congress permitted workers in the postal service to suffer under an average of pay little more than half the cost of normal living.

This long delay was not necessary. If the joint Postal Commission needed more than fourteen months to discover that prices had risen and that the meagre pay schedules of pre-war times, with only a slight war-time bonus added, were utterly insufficient to meet them, the Congress, pending a final revision, might easily have authorized an adequate emergency increase. Instead, it voted only one bonus of $150 a year and limited that to men receiving less than $2,500.

We recognize that the readjustment of an intricate wage schedule is not the work of a moment. There is probably warrant for the detailed investigation which the Postal Commission has made.

But it did not need more than fourteen months to do this. And if it did, why should there not have been an ample ad interim allowance?

It would have met the wage crisis as it arose by a sufficient general grant and left the readjustment to a more convenient season.

The consequence of this long delay by the Congress is that thousands of competent men have been starved out of the postal service and their places taken, at advanced pay, by inferior substitutes. The service itself has become demoralized. And there has been no real economy; instead, injustice has been supplemented by waste.

The public at last is beginning to understand.

Congressmen are being deluged with telegrams and letters urging them to pay these patient and faithful workers a living wage.

In place of long-maintained silence, Congressmen are at last beginning to show signs of interest. Not a day now passes without some member volunteering an explanation, apology or promise.

But, according to present plans, the Congress intends to adjourn, either in recess or finally, before the Chicago Convention. In its final hours its calendar is always jammed. The steering committees of the two Houses have made no provision to list the postal pay bill among the measures to receive preferential consideration.

On the contrary, there are some indications of an intent among the Republican leaders to postpone action until December.

The House floor leader, Mr. Mondell, is noticeably lukewarm. His predecessor, Mr. Mann, once so staunch a friend of postal workers, has been quoted as advising that it "might be politics" to move slowly.

An impression is definitely forming among close observers that the party in control of the Congress would like to make a campaign issue of the present demoralization of the postal service by charging it upon the Democratic administration.

We hold no brief for Burleson or Wilson. Their conduct of the postoffice has at many points been beyond defence.

But this hesitancy to vote just pay to the men who sort or carry the mails is not chargeable to them.

The responsibility for appropriations is UPON THE REPUBLICAN MAJORITY.

If this session of the Congress adjourns without making fair provision for the underpaid, discouraged, almost despairing postal workers, the blame will rest squarely upon Republican shoulders.

And the Hearst papers will see that the people know all about it.

The thing to do, gentlemen of the Congress, is to forget politics and take an enlightened, business-like view of this problem.

Senator Sterling, chairman of the Postal Commission, has said that remedy will come; that if the Congress shall not be able to enact it prior to the ending of the present fiscal year on June 30, the advance will date back to July 1.

The injustice dates back much further than that, Senator.

It dates back to the beginning of high prices.

If, therefore, the Postal Commission and the Congress are sincere in their protestations of intent to correct this flagrant wrong, the pre-dating will at least cover the nearly fifteen weary months during which the commission pursued its leisurely survey of the postal service's slow starvation and the Congress made only one little $150 step to bridge the growing chasm.

Exploiters Seek to Rule Both Parties, Says Bryan

"EXPLOITERS seek to rule both the old political parties," declares William Jennings Bryan in a particularly timely and powerful article in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Revelations of the past few days in Washington before the Senate committee investigating pre-convention campaign expenses lend particular force to Mr. Bryan's warning. Lowden, it was testified, paid $404,984 for delegate contests, and possibly $3,000,000 is estimated to have been spent in behalf of Wood. It is to this national menace of the "Money Power" that Mr. Bryan points.

"The reactionary is in politics as he has not been in years; he has money without limit and newspapers galore. His stake is the control of the government of the richest nation on earth. Nothing but an aroused electorate can save the nation from an unexampled era of exploitation," writes Mr. Bryan.

"The only safe plan is for the friends of progress in both parties to control their respective conventions; then, no matter which party wins, the country will be safe.

"The reactionaries will try to write both platforms and nominate both candidates. Then they will be able to throw the Democratic party on the ash-pile and give the Republican party a majority large enough to encourage it recklessly to obey the instructions from Wall street."

The Jews of New England and all the world hail with joy the appointment of the Rt. Hon. Herbert Louis Samuel as the first ruler of the new Zion created in Palestine. The British government having accepted the mandate for Palestine, has named as its high commissioner an orthodox Jew who has been Postmaster-General, Home Secretary and adviser of the government and has filled many other important positions. He is noted for his philanthropy and tolerance. Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will give a more intimate description of the broad-minded statesman picked to direct an epochal regeneration of Zion's hopes of centuries.

Boston has a thriving Greenwich Village of its own—only it isn't called Greenwich. The artists, musicians, writers and society folk who frequent this new Bohemia call it "Beacon Village," for it was born on historic Beacon Hill, and its quaint restaurants nestle almost hid from view in the antique houses abandoned by society generations since, in alley-like streets close to the State House.

Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will tell of "The Blue Gates," "The Purple Cow," "The Green Shutters," "The Lighted Lamp," "The Cat's Eye" and "Nan's Kitchen."

Max Nordau, the "world's foremost Jew," tells his race in a powerful article they must leave class hate and strife behind when they enter the promised land. He declares Palestine is no place for economic clashes and militant Socialism, for—"Judaism is social justice."

How Boston girls can dress suitably for business at a total outlay of $100 will be told exclusively in an illustrated article.

A woman who is a well-known authority on the subject will describe in detail a costume she has worked out after an extensive study.

How is Mary Pickford spending her honeymoon? Public interest in the little film star has been greatly strengthened by her romantic marriage to Douglas Fairbanks, coming on the heels of her divorce from Owen Moore, and the subsequent efforts of the State of Nevada to have the Pickford-Moore divorce set aside.

The Magazine Section of tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will contain a page of pictures and reading matter describing the honeymoon.

The criminal of thirty years ago —the middle-aged man, grown skilled from long experience—no longer exists. In his place modern society is plagued by bands of mere boys, whose crimes are sneaky and who prepare for a "job" by stimulating themselves with drugs.

This fact is vouched for by Inspector Morris Wolf, for twenty years perhaps the best-known detective in the city's Bureau of Criminal Investigation, who retires on June 15 at the end of thirty-one years of police work for Boston.

Inspector Wolf has given to the Boston Sunday Advertiser an interview in which he sums up his experience on the force.

How credit unions in Massachusetts plan to cut the cost of living by aiding co-operative home building, co-operative buying of supplies and co-operative action by Bay State farmers is told in an interesting article.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Garrison Replies

Editor Boston American:

Enclosed is copy of a letter addressed to the Newton Post, No. 48, of the American Legion, in reply to a recent resolution adverting by name to the writer. Inasmuch as the Newton Post, No. 48, sent copy containing a set of resolutions including the foregoing to the Boston papers, some of which gave publicity to the matter sent them, I am enclosing copy of my reply, which I am today mailing to the adjutant of the Newton Post, No. 48, at Newton, Mass.

WM. LLOYD GARRISON, JR.

May 27, 1920.

Newton Post, No. 48,
American Legion,
Newton, Mass.

I wish to acknowledge receipt of your communication dated May 3, containing copy of the resolution to the effect "that this post deplores the fact that two of the citizens of this community, William Lloyd Garrison and Robert Gould Shaw, bearing famous historic names, are among the number of petitioners" who signed a petition presented "to the President of the United States calling for the release of about 700 political prisoners who were convicted during the war and who are still held in various prisons throughout the country for offences against the draft and espionage acts."

I am grateful to the Newton Post, No. 48, of the American Legion, for calling public attention to this petition for clemency in relation to political prisoners, as the failure to release these prisoners is widely regarded as being both a national disgrace and a grievous mistake of public policy.

As a matter of fact, it is to be deeply deplored that the American Legion should have left it to private citizens to make this obvious appeal to common justice and humanity. Nothing could become the Legion more than the demonstration of a generous magnanimity expressed in a demand for clemency in behalf of our political prisoners.

As to your comment anent the "historic" name I chance to bear, the briefest study of the career of William Lloyd Garrison will make clear that his reputation rested fundamentally upon his belief in the power of right to triumph over might, together with his lifelong insistence upon the rights of freedom of speech and action for the individual man and woman, however unfortunate or downtrodden. He was perhaps the best known pacifist and non-resistant of his day in this country, believing with Tolstoi in the absolute efficacy of the philosophy of Jesus.

His career as a reformer made its effective beginning at the time he was committed to jail in Baltimore for exercising the rights of free speech, and were he now alive he would unquestionably regard the conscientious objectors as disciples of his own school of thought and as the traditional upholders of individual liberty and of fundamental Christian ideals.

Isn't it time that we dealt with this and every other debatable question in the sympathetic and tolerant spirit of Abraham Lincoln, whose determination to treat with leniency and humanity the leaders of the Confederate cause proved to be not only an act of profound political wisdom but an achievement in practical Christianity now recalled with a grateful sense of national pride.

WM. LLOYD GARRISON, JR.
